CHINA ENVOY'S MISSION

Mr. Tang Denies
"London Reports"

PURE INVENTION

(Hong Kong Daily Press' Special)
Berlin, June 11.

The reports first published by the London Sunday papers, and subsequently published by a certain section of the German press, to the effect that the special envoy of the Chinese Government, Minister Dr. Tang Leang Li who is at present travelling in Europe engaged in special studies, had in reality come to buy munitions and negotiate a loan in London, prompted Minister Dr. Tang to make the following categorical denial through Transocean:

"The whole story as published last Sunday is pure invention from the beginning to the end, as absurd as it is malicious."

"My mission to Europe is to find ways and means to make China policy better understood, to make our friends in the West realise that reconstruction work is going on in China despite the most tremendous odds, and that it is one which guarantees peace, and therefore the only effective means of checking the spread of Communism in the Far East."

"My work is publicity, not international finance or military affairs."

Minister Tang made this statement immediately on arriving in Berlin on Thursday where he will deliver an address on "Ten Years of Reconstruction Work," and will then proceed back to London where he has other engagements. He will leave for New York on June 30 by the "North German Lloyd liner Europa."

The letter states, moreover, that the Government wants to raise the standard of life of its officials and, in order to work out a plan to accomplish this, would collect evidence in all Ministries.

COLOUR COMPETITION

So far as summer suits are concerned, the greys still have it, in company with blues, when it comes to popularity votes. Grey flannel makes up into excellent costumes, and there are other flannels interwoven with broken flecks or "tufts" or raised spots of colour—red, blue or yellow.

The blues include a deep Mediterranean shade, the favourite "midnight," a dark delphinium, royal, and, it goes without saying, navy. Another colour which promises to be popular for tailored clothes is a cross between sand and orange. It is very successful with white accessories. "Carrot," a new shade between pink and red, is being welcomed by those who like their summer sports clothes to be colourful.

The darker purple tones are fast disappearing. This is not altogether surprising, because they were not particularly becoming. The wood violet and Parma shades on the other hand, remain in vogue. They are better, however, in silks and chiffons for dresses than in cloth for costumes.

PARIS FASHIONS

THE DEVELOPMENT OF LINEN

Figured crepe dresses have been worn at Longchamp as well as figured coats and tunics with plain dresses. Big hats were usual, made of straw, felt, and braid, with feather trimmings or flowers. Fox furs are still worn. Beige and black are frequently put together. Black and green are worn, as when a black dress has a green sash and a loose jacket in green velvet. Violet is a colour which is still in fashion. Navy blue and white make a combination which is not looked on as right for formal parties. Black is right. It may be trimmed with something shiny, such as narrow leather bindings, beading. Again, the whole dress, or coat and skirt, may be in cellophane material. With soft white lawn to make the blouse, and a hat of ostrich plumes or alpacas, this is a trim fashion.

CLOKE CREPE

Cloke crepe is very much used for the new long coat with flared basques and tightly buttoned front to the throat, where it meets a small high collar. Taffetas, of some substance, is also used for these long coats, which go over figured dresses, or plain dresses of another colour. White coats and jackets are worn again. Poplin and shantung, rather than pique, are used for these. In black taffetas, with the coat long and flared, buttoned close to the throat, a tall slender woman wears a green jade necklace, a big black hat in cyclor trimmed with a wing in the same colour as the necklace.

At the Gainsborough Ball there were many modern satin dresses, softly printed in pale coloured flowers, made in clinging lines, with fullness behind to fall to the ground but not to a train. A sack coat with short full sleeves might match the dress, or a silver fox fur cape might be worn. Pale blue organza is used for a dress with a full skirt and bodice with short puffed sleeves. Dresses of white crepe may be draped Greek fashion and have front panels of crystal bead embroidery. The backs of the bodices are cut very low and wide, or they may be briefly cut to a point or a sweeping half-circle. Shoulder straps may be scarcely visible, or ornamentally wide, draped, embroidered, or a ribbon of another colour from the dress. Flowers are worn in the hair, on the shoulder, or in front of the bodice. Gloves meet the short sleeves of the dress.

LINENS IN HOLIDAYS

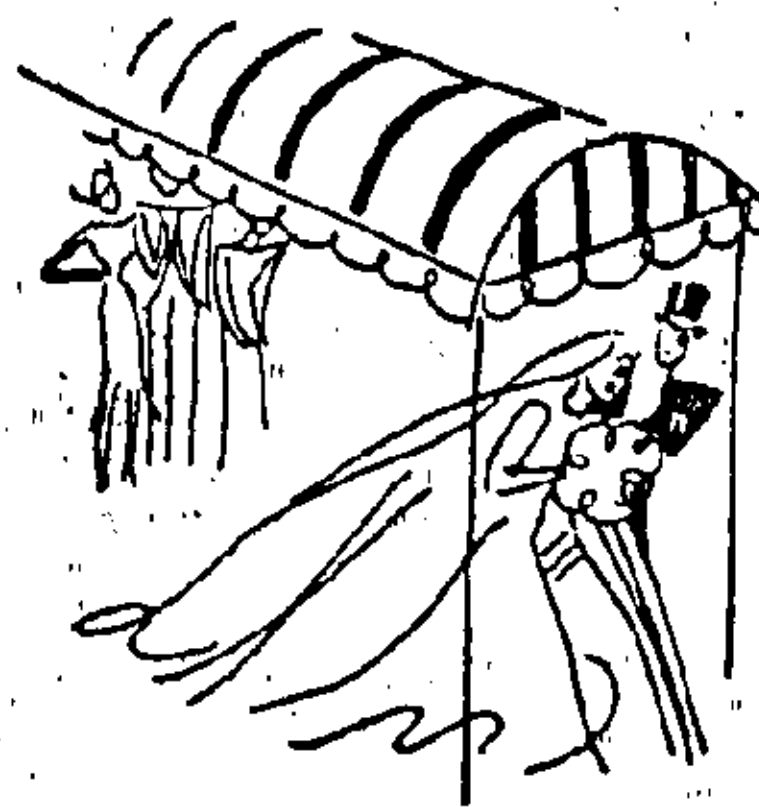

In the holidays, linens will be much worn. The linens most used by the Paris dressmakers are the Moygashels from Belfast. Un-crushable, with just the right substance, good in colour, design, and finish, they are right for beach clothes, morning tailor-mades, and evening dresses in the country, at the sea, or on a cruise.

Worth puts printed linen jackets with navy blue skirts. Some of these are loose fitting, others fit close and have belts. With short sleeves or long they are gay companions to plain skirts. When linens are plain Worth uses two colours in an ensemble, as when he puts a dress in pink linen with a jacket in brown linen with pink collar and cuffs. In red and sea green he makes shorts for the beach with blouse to match. To go with shorts and blouse Worth makes long white woollen capes with broad coloured stripes running round them. For the country he has some bright little frocks in striped linens with which he puts a plain jacket. With a beige linen dress he puts a raspberry red linen jacket. With a white dress he has a lemon coloured jacket.

Here Comes The Bride!

"CHINESE" MAKE-UP

The exotic Chinese make-up which Elizabeth Arden has just created in New York City is directly traceable to the recent Chinese Art Exhibition in London with its marked influence on American fashions and coiffures.

This lovely new make-up has fairly taken New York by storm, since it blends so perfectly with the quaint "coolie" hats and the delicate Oriental blues and greens of the mandarin coats and Chinese tunics so many smart New York women are wearing.

Particularly striking for brunettes, even blondes find a lighter version of this make-up successful.

The woman with rather prominent cheek bones may leave off rouge entirely. Otherwise, the cheek bones are accentuated very lightly with colour applied high on the faces.

A creamy eggshell tint of foundation cream and powder lend the face an interesting pallor. Brilliant red lipstick is used on the mouth. A beauty expert here suggests applying lip rouge and shaping the mouth with a small camel-hair brush.

"ELONGATING" THE EYES!

The eyes are cleverly elongated by drawing a short, delicate line slightly up and out from the outer corner of each eye. A black or very dark brown eye-brow pencil does this trick. To complete the Oriental effect, the brows also are extended up and outward in a graceful sweep.

A rather light, coppery shade of cosmetic is used to spread the lashes fan-shape instead of curling them upward.

In one fascinating version of the Chinese coiffure which has been evolved to wear with this Far Eastern make-up, the hair is parted in the centre, and swept lightly up and back from the face into a soft roll encircling the head.

SEEN IN PARIS

Necklaces are made of natural raffia, twisted round a needle into large roundish beads, then sewn irregularly over and over.

Bunches of large crocheted flowers—usually white with a thin coloured edge—are worn as buttonholes on knitted jumpers.

Watches are set flush in pear-shaped frames of solid leather. Leather strands, like thickish shoe laces, form the fob.

Leather initials, an inch and a half high, are worn on the front of hand-knitted scarves. Leopard skin is used for

PRETTY POCKETS

Fancy pockets are featured on many of the new summer dresses, and give an air of gaiety, being used quite often as the chief point of decoration.

Some are made with petal tops; other with the tops decorated with small flowers, beads, or buttons; and others again—on festive afternoon models—are composed entirely of closely massed silk blossoms. They are very sweet, and look especially successful when the dress is worn with one of the little toques made similarly of closely massed flowers.

bathing costumes for both men and women.

FASHION BY NIGHT

Butterfly wings, feathers, and flowers in the hair are among the newest evening accessories worn to introduce colour. Jewelled coronets and tiaras are seen at the opera.

Gloves of palest colours in suede are in best style among many charming fanciful productions. Shoes and sandals must be chosen in accordance with the gown they accompany.

High-necked evening dresses are ultra-smart this season. This is good news for newer types of women, who look far more interesting when they avoid the ordinary evening clothes or anything in the way of picturesque attire. New ideas in sleeves help to a smart effect.

Very bright colours are now worn when they suit, but for the average woman a dark or neutral foundation is a more economical choice. More variety can be secured.

PARADE OF THE COTTON FROCKS

Never Has This Material Been More Versatile

The return of cottons to fashion importance must count among its causes the invention of techniques for shrinkage control, particularly the most adequate of these, sanforizing; the improvements in colour-fastness; the new ways of maintaining yarns and weaves that result in crush-resistant textures and permanent finishes; and the handsome styling of fabrics both as to weave and design.

In this article cottons and linens will be considered as falling into one classification.

Fashion shows two trends in these fabrics, one for heavy goods in shaggy, nubby, crinkled, blistered, waffled, corded, puffed, tufted, spongy, matelasse and homespun surfaces; the other for soft sheers, in which, however, the same ideas are expressed but in very delicate and dainty weaves.

Among the heavy materials, suitable for tailoring, are suit, coat and dress fabrics of the upholstery and bedspread types, such as novelty piques, bamboo linens, glazed chintz, chevrons, seersuckers. Other attractive selections can be made in crases, shantung, homespun, brushed cottons, chambray and gingham. This spring, however, gingham is a staple rather than a style factor.

Sheers include among various weaves, crepes, ratines, swiss and other muslins, dimity, batiste, voile, chiffon, net and lace.

The season is exuberant with design and colour, so that in almost every goods definite patterning can be had, superimposed, often in relief, on the background texture, which itself is patterned by some novelty weave. The decoration in colour, particularly for daytime wear, takes the form of set figures, floral or geometric. Dots of various shapes and tiny squares are very popular and sometimes look as if they were pasted on, as is the case in one of our illustrations. Sprawling ribbon and bowknot motifs are attractive on crases, nautical emblems on piques, astronomical symbols on glazed chintzes for evening frocks.

EFFECT OF HANDWORK

Sheer cottons are fond of openwork, which has frequently the effect of handcraft. Hemstitching, cut-work and eyelet embroidery enhance some of them and others merely present an open weave as a background for colour printing. Subtly blistered stripes, very thin cording, and self-colour woven motifs form backgrounds for half linear designs; amusing emblems of sporting activities; quaint renderings of flowers, buds, fruits and leaves, ombre stripes, ragged dots, broken angles.

Because cottons have style importance their colours are as numerous as those of wools and silks. For background hues navy, bright blue, pale blue, purple-blue and turquoise dark brown and beige, gray, "Sutter's gold" (a strawberry-rose tint), pink, yellow, chartreuse, crushedberry, dubonnet, apricot, brick, green, red, mauve, orchid, amethyst and purple all occur frequently. The tints allied with them in the patterning are often very interesting; as blue with brown on chartreuse; dubonnet and white on gray; and again on periwinkle-blue; brown on turquoise; turquoise on mauve; red, green, yellow and brown combined on apricot; dark brown on brick; blue on mulberry.

Dark grounds are in the best taste for town and business wear, except for gray, which is in the mode for tailored styles. For evening white, the pastels and the high shades that derive from Chinese, Spanish, Mexican and Tyrolean influences are all in the running.

SUITS COATS AND DRESSES

New this year in cottons are the severely tailored suits, meticulous in workmanship. They show straight skirts with kick pleats and detailed seaming; single and double-breasted jackets, some with action backs; sheared and pleated shoulders, mannish lapels; irregularly shaped pockets, and, in short, all the features of wool and tweed suits.

Even the softer suit is a new idea for cottons, and it is fashioned with peplum, bolero, contrast bindings, fancy buttons, standing collars, vertical stitching, cording and other such dressmaker details.

The tailored mode, so insistent this spring, expresses itself also in cotton dresses, both one-piece and two-piece. Skirts are kept straight and given freedom and interest by pleats in both the front and back. Bodices may have pleated or stitched bosoms, and example of the latter being illustrated. Shirt collars and short sleeves pleated into the shoulders and finished with turn-back cuffs are characteristic. However, soft, shirred bodices also appear, with wide armholes, convertible necklines, "Margo" ruffs, puffed sleeves. Peplums, tunics and capes contribute to the varied silhouette. A three-quarter swagger jacket in a contrasting cotton material and colour sometimes accompanies the dress. Velvet and corduroy in high shades are attractive for these.

The tailored dinner suit, so very practical particularly for town use, is repeated in cottons and will often be worn with a decollete blouse under the jacket thus achieving formality for after-dinner events.

COTTON EVENING DRESSES

Cotton evening dresses follow the silhouettes that are acceptable in formal materials. Decolletages round, square or pointed in the front and back and high front necklines with low backs are all offered. The tendency is to mold the skirt as far as the knees and then let it escape in fullness and striped goods are worked into geometrical patterns that emphasize both the molded line and the flares. However, the sheer cottons are very graceful when gathered into fullness at the waistline. Alix has made an ensemble of white batiste with a gathered skirt cut up in front and a "dervish" coat with an extremely voluminous skirt portion.

Chiffon, batiste and other sheers are used for very full wrist-length evening jackets with bishop sleeves and also for boleros, peplums and swaggers, sometimes worn with silk frocks and always contrasted in colour. Usually they are white, misty gray or a pastel. Embroidered petticoats of batiste allowed to show beneath dress skirts cut up in front to reveal them have been newly launched by Paris.

Blouses, shirts, gilets, waistcoats, vests, jabots, ruffles, cuffs, lapels of pique, linen and the sheers, with batiste as a particular favourite, are worn with dresses and suits of wool, silk and the synthetic yarns. Linen, crash and novelty cottons will be used this summer and herringbone linen is a new fabric for summer shoes.

For all the active sports and on the beach striking silhouettes already are presented in various cotton novelties, including Japanese hand-blocked cottons and sail cloth. A trouser suit of sail cloth has pant legs and also sleeves with columns of buttons in alternating bright colours on which the length can be buttoned up or down.

Hong Kong Daily Press Special

Dusseldorf, June 10.

The first German film exhibition was held here under the title "Film and Photo." All the technical details of making a film from the first rough manuscript to the final production were illustrated or demonstrated. The main attraction proved to be a replica of a film studio, where the public could watch the shooting of a picture from a special platform.

THE BRIEFEST INSCRIPTION

THE KING'S FIELD MARSHAL BATON

London, May 29.

The briefest inscription which has ever appeared on a field marshal's baton is on that which the Duke of Connaught, as senior Field Marshal of the British Army, will hand to his great-nephew the King at Buckingham Palace to-morrow. It reads simply:

His Majesty, King Edward VIII, Field Marshal, January 21, 1936.

An official of Messrs. Garrard, the Crown Goldsmiths, who made the baton, said in an interview:

"Inscriptions on all other batons—and we have made them for every field marshal during the past eighty years—have always included the full title of the King. King George's own baton, as well as those he gave to all his field marshals, bore his full styles and dignities.

The simplicity of the inscription, which is carried but in plain lettering surrounded by a scroll work, is understood to be in accordance with the King's own wish.

The baton is 22 inches long and is covered in crimson velvet ornamented with 18 finely chased gold lions. On the head is a fully modelled figure of St. George and the Dragon in solid 18-carat gold, with a band of laurel leaves and another of roses, thistles, and shamrock beneath it. Similar bands ornament the heavy gold ferrule at the base, which also bears the inscription.

Five field marshals—Lord Cavan, Sir Philip Chetwode, Sir William Birdwood, Lord Milne, and Sir Archibald Montgomery—Messrs. Garrard will accompany the Duke of Connaught when he takes the baton to the Palace.

THE KING'S NEW CAR

The King has bought a new car, and it has been delivered at the Royal Mews, Buckingham Palace. It is an all-British model, with a black saloon body, similar in type to the cars used by the King as Prince of Wales, and is intended for private use by the King.

Criminal master minds plot his death, deadly cobras, strike out with poisonous fangs, and foaming gorillas rage, at his back, but Warner Oland as the famous Chinese detective calmly and silently unravels one of the most baffling mysteries of his entire career in the Fox picture "Charlie Chan at the Circus," which is now showing at the King's Theatre.

It is Chan's task in the new picture to track down a mysterious killer, who after having committed one murder, returns time and again to the scene of the crime to silence those who might know his identity. Since the murdered man was owner of a circus and his relations with the performers were none too amiable, every one of the circus people is under suspicion, including the giant gorilla who was out of his cage at the time the crime was committed.

With few clues to work with and continuous attempts upon his life hindering his progress on the case, Chan slowly weaves a web of evidence around the suspected party. To the amazement of the police and the circus performers, who are all baffled by the mystery of the case, Chan uses one of the victims of the murderer as a decoy and cleverly traps the suspected person into revealing his true identity. The solution of the crime brings happiness to the large circus group who were continually terrorized by the unknown criminal.

Prominent in the supporting cast are Keye Luke, who portrays Chan's son, Francis Ford, Maxine Reiner, John McGuire, Shirley Deane, Paul Stanton and J. Carroll Nash.

SPECIAL AGENT

"Special Agent" a Warner Bros. production due shortly at the Queen's Theatre, with Bette Davis and George Brent in the stellar roles. The picture is said to reveal the inner workings of the U.S. Treasury Department showing an entirely new angle of the Government's activities in wiping out the nation's public enemies.

George Brent in the role of a newspaper reporter on a New York Daily, also allied with the Government as an under cover man, is trying to get evidence against the crooks and at the same time preventing them from murdering Bette Davis, his sweetheart, who unwittingly, has taken a job as the personal secretary to the head of the band. Ricardo Cortez has the role of the polished, ruthless killer.

Others in the cast are Jack LaRue, Henry O'Neill, Robert Strange, Joseph Creham, J. Carroll Nash and Robert Barrat.

William Kelchley directed the screen play by Laird Doyle and Abem Finkel, based on the story idea by Martin Mooney.

There is room for four people besides chauffeur and footman. The car is a standard model, with no special fittings.

In choosing a British car, the King has followed the example of King George, who used cars made in this country both for private and for state drives. For official occasions King Edward is retaining the maroon and scarlet cars which were his father's.

Kay Francis, glamorous Warner Bros. Star with little Sybil Jason the new child wonder in "I Found Stella Parish" showing at the Queen's Theatre.

I FOUND STELLA PARISH

Kay Francis will bring tears to the eyes of women, patrons and a suspicious moisture to the eyes of many of the men in the First National's intensely emotional drama "I Found Stella Parish," which opens to-day at the Queen's Theatre.

Miss Francis is supported by an exceptionally talented cast, which includes Ian Hunter, Paul Lukas, Sybil Jason, Jessie, Ralph and Barton MacLane.

The story by John Monk Saunders concerns the hidden life of a brilliant but mysterious actress who has climbed to the pinnacle of success and whose marvellous artistry is the sensation of all London. Her strange and sudden disappearance just after the premiere showing of a new and successful play startles the world and leads to a search for her by a brilliant young journalist played by Ian Hunter, noted British actor.

His discovery of her living in disguise and the publication of the secret of her past life brings a scandal that rocks two continents and wrecks the actress' life. How this journalist learns that the woman he had ruined had loved him and his subsequent battle to undo the wrong he had done her and to bring her back to the path of success is as glamorous a romance as has been depicted on the screen.

A finished performance is given by Paul Lukas in the role of Miss Francis' theatrical producer who also is in love with her. Sybil Jason the South African child star portrays her role as the daughter of Miss Francis with remarkable naturalness.

Others in the cast who have lesser parts, but who give outstanding performances, include Jessie Ralph, as the child's nurse; Barton MacLane, as the black-malling husband of Miss Francis; Walter Kingsford, Harry Beresford, Joseph Sawyer, Eddie Acuff and Robert Strange.

THE INVISIBLE RAY

An enormous black pit in the jungles of Africa, luminous death lurking in its depths, forms the background for highly interesting scenes in "The Invisible Ray," the thrilling Universal drama of science and adventure showing to-morrow at the Alhambra and Central Theatres, with Karloff and Bela Lugosi in the starring roles.

Karloff, a scientist, discovers that this great cavity has been created by a falling meteor, impregnated with an unknown element a thousand times more powerful than radium. Protected by a lead mask and long leaden gloves, he secures a small portion of the deadly glowing substance, which he names Radium X, and which he later employs with terrible effect against enemies who have stolen his wife and the secret of his great discovery. A horrible fate, however, is his, as in working with the powerful chemical, his entire body is affected by its poisons and his hands and face are luminous in the dark, while his fingers carry death to any living thing he touches.

This wild setting of the pit and its surroundings forms one of the largest and most colourful scenes since the advent of talking pictures, and represents the very ultimate in the accomplishment of studio technical departments.

"Invisible Ray" was directed by Lambert Hillyer, and the cast sup-

SEQUOIA

The perfect answer to the demand for wholesome and inspiring pictures that has swept the screen world recently is offered in "Sequoia," a startling and unusual nature drama featuring Jean Parker and currently playing to-day at the Star Theatre.

Filmed amid the grandeur of Sequoia National Park, the outdoor drama is as new and fresh as mountain air in the extraordinary entertainment values. Literally "something new under the cinema sun," it is proving a sensation.

With Miss Parker and Russell Hardie as two young people who find love amid the grandeur of the giant trees in Sequoia National Park, there is also the most stirring drama of animal life ever filmed.

A deer and a mountain lion, two of nature's deadliest enemies, were photographed in their natural haunts from the time they were two weeks old until a friendship developed that lasted until maturity. After they pass the "bottle fed" stage, their instinct to fight with each other is transferred to a battle with the wilds.

Hundreds of deer on migration are shown leaping windbreaks over twenty feet high on migrations to remote high Sierra regions; more than a dozen varieties of wild life are revealed in their natural haunts, including coyotes, bears, raccoons, eagles, rattlesnakes, fawns and small lion cubs.

The few human players in the supporting cast with Miss Parker and Hardie include Samuel Hinds, as a naturalist-writer; Paul Hurst, as a deer-killing poacher; Edward Brophy, as a forest ranger, and Willie Fung, as an oriental house-body.

THE EX-KAISER AND EDWARD VII

A Violent Quarrel

London, May 23.

In his Life of the ex-Kaiser, which is being serialised in the "Sunday Times," Mr. E. F. Benson gives a lively description of one of his most violent quarrels with the Prince of Wales, afterwards Edward VII.

Soon after his accession, William accused the Prince of meddling in German politics and Bismarck actually sent formal complaint to the Prime Minister, Lord Salisbury. What annoyed the Kaiser most was the suggestion attributed to the Prince that the Emperor Frederick would have wished to restore territory to France, Denmark and Hanover.

That year, the Kaiser and the Prince were both to stay with the Emperor of Austria at Vienna. When he arrived at the Austrian capital the Prince learned from the British Ambassador that the Kaiser did not wish to meet him. In this quarrel, Queen Victoria interposed with characteristic vigour. The story is part of the instalment of Mr. Benson's book which will appear in the "Sunday Times" to-morrow.

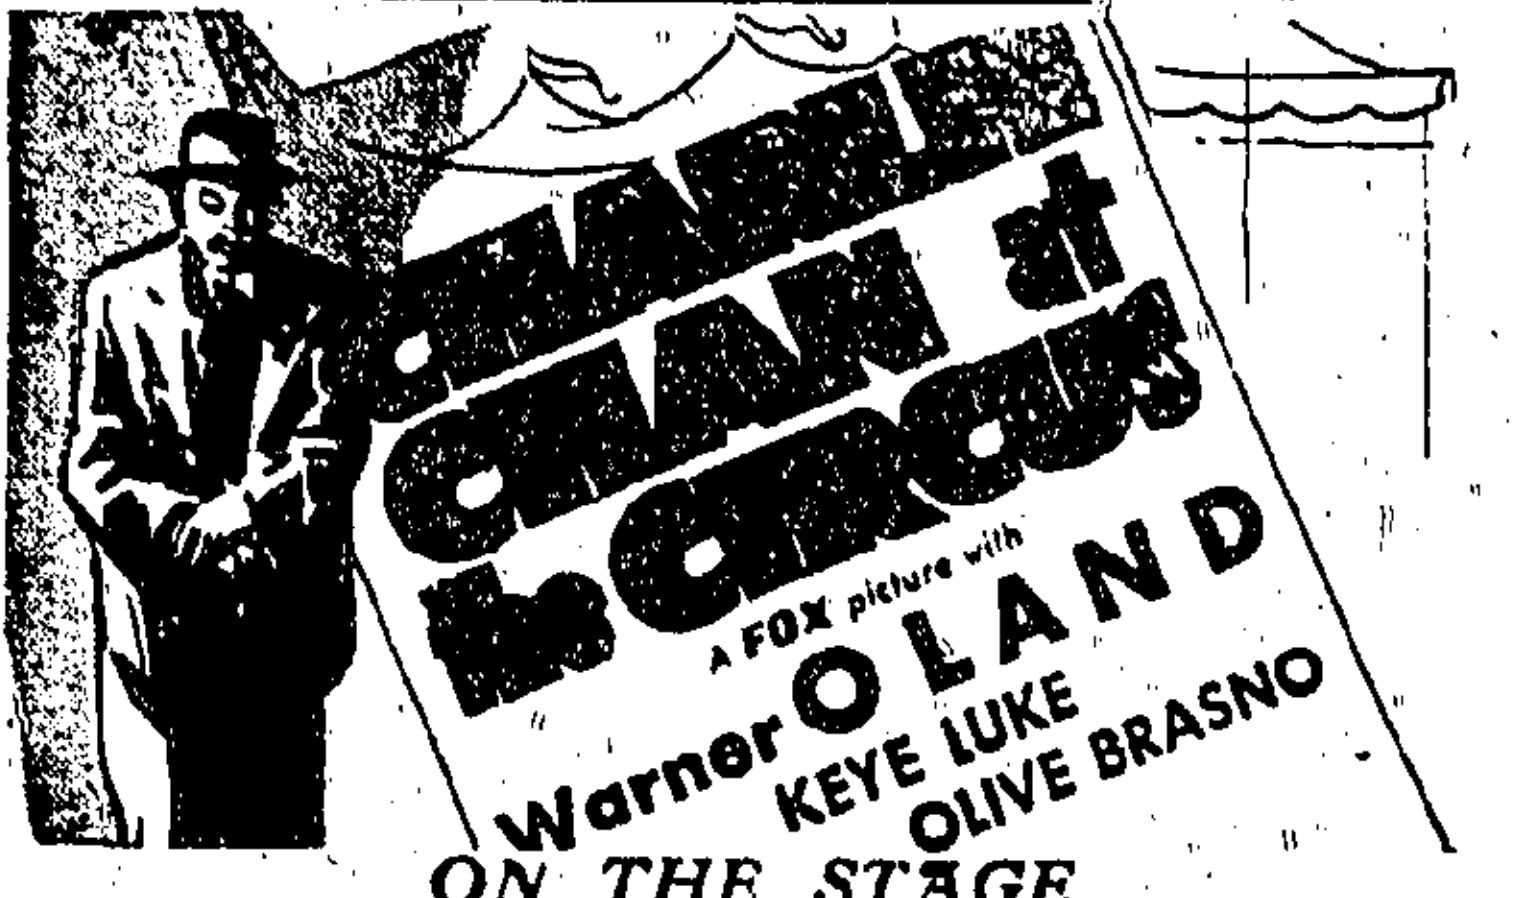

porting Karloff and Lugosi includes such talented players as Frances Drake, Frank Lawton, Boulah Bondi, Walter Kingsford and Violet Kemble Cooper. The picture, its story adapted by John O'Conor from an original story by Howard Higgin and Douglass Hodge, was produced by Edmund Gralinger.

IMPERIAL AIRWAY EXAMPLE

Mr. Fokker's Tribute

Amsterdam, May 26.

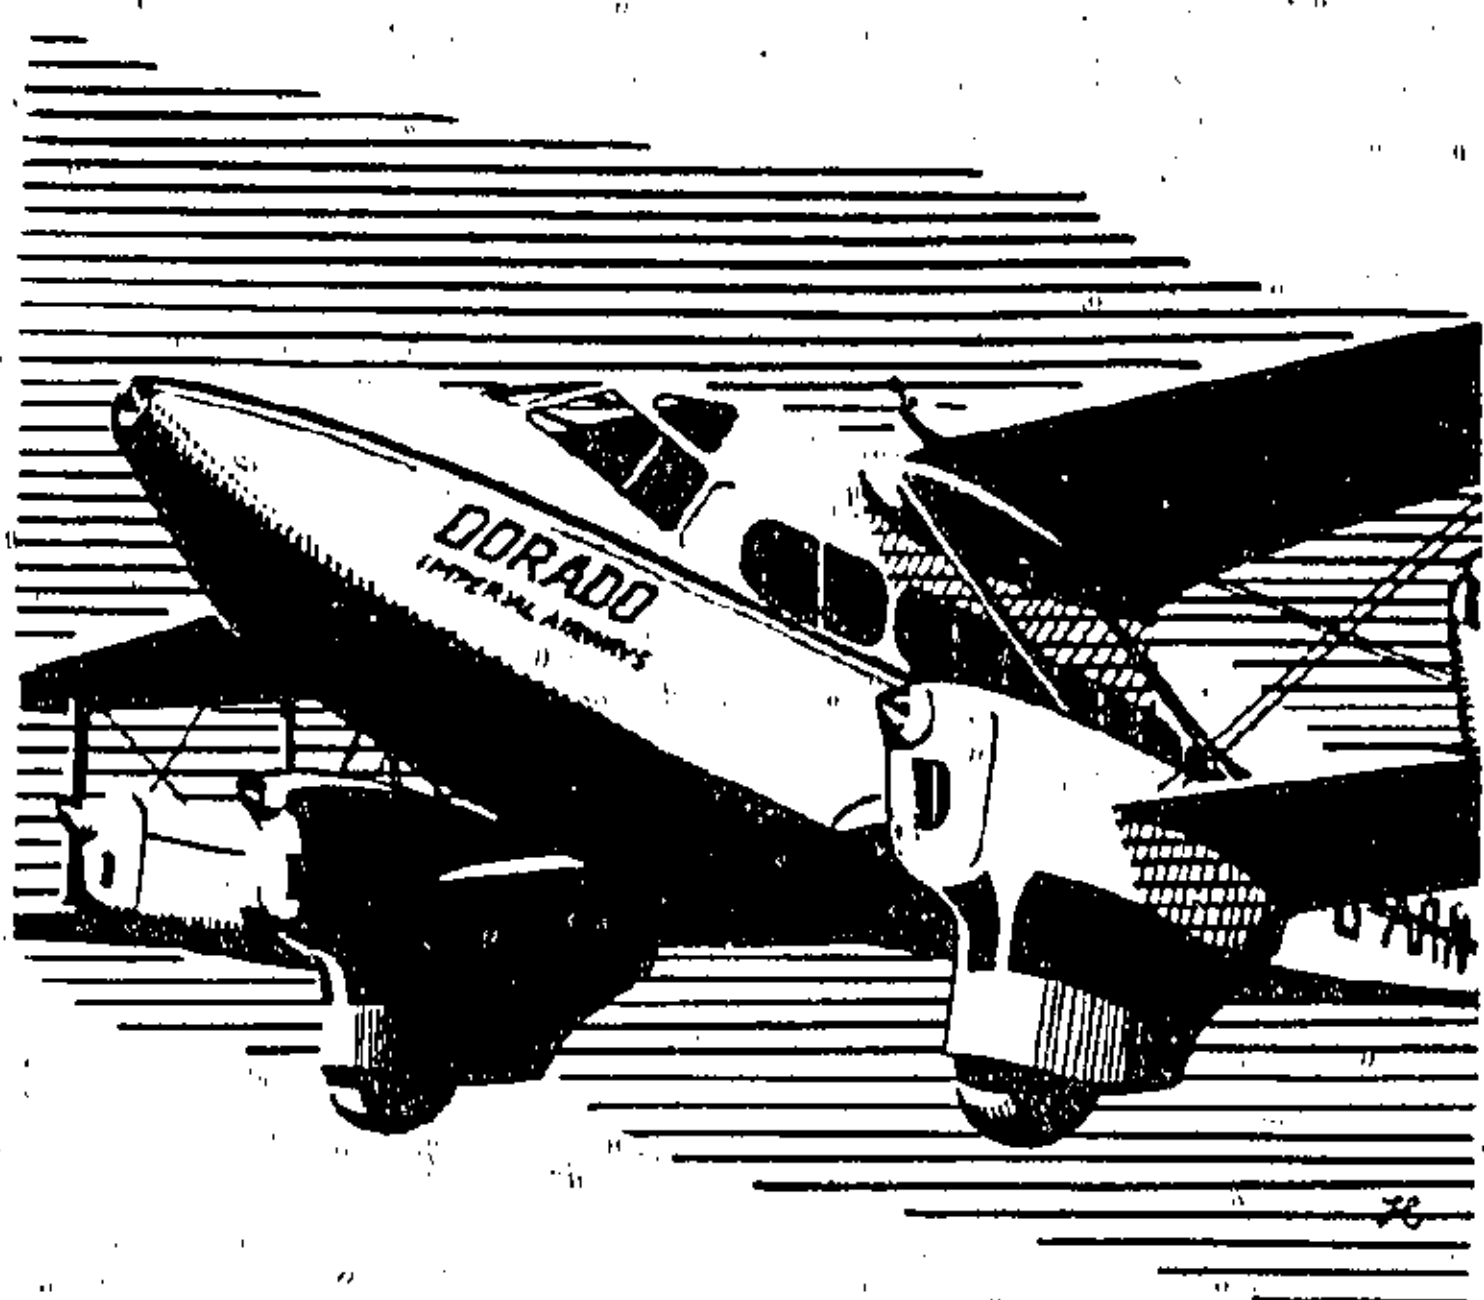

Mr. Anthony Fokker, the Dutch aeroplane builder, paid high tribute to-day to Imperial Airways, writes a correspondent.

"They will soon have at their disposal," he said to me, "28 giant aeroplanes and 28 four-engined seaplanes, all of the most modern design. I have the greatest admiration for the steady lines of development they have followed. I also have noticed that this is the policy of British aviation generally."

Mr. Fokker gave me details of his latest plan for the Fokker F. 56, a four-engined giant "plane" which can carry 56 passengers and a crew of five to six. This machine is a double-decker. The "plane's" maximum speed will be 220 miles an hour. Its low luggage room could if necessary be used as a storeroom for bombs and aerial torpedoes. In other words, the F.56 will be ready for service "without conversion" as a heavy bombing machine.

YET ANOTHER ARREST

Another man was brought before Mr. E. Himsforth at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday charged with being implicated in a piracy in British waters outside Lyemum Pass last month, when armed men boarded an unlicensed junk and made off with cargo which included 20 tins of kerosene and 10 cases of matches. The accused, Chan Chuen, 21, earth coolie was remanded for 48 hours in police custody. Detective Sergeant Kin-near, prosecuted. Six men have now been arrested and await their trial.

CHILD VICTIMISED

A particularly mean type of theft was related to Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday when two unemployed, one a youth, were charged in connection with the larceny of a child's jade bangle. The prosecuting officer said that the theft took place while the mother was marketing at Shamshui Market. The youth Chan Fook Tsai, 17, removed the child's bangle.

Chan Fook 32, was charged with receiving the stolen property. He admitted guilt and was sentenced to four months' imprisonment. Tsai was remanded for 24 hours in police custody. Both defendants were stated to reside at the same address.

Mrs. J. E. Noronha appeared on behalf of T. Noronha, Jr. in answer to a summons for allowing a black spaniel in Chatham Road near Austin Road on May 23, without a muzzle or lead, and was fined $15 by Mr. E. Himsforth at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday. The offence was stated to have taken place at 8.20 a.m. Sergeant Wheeler prosecuted.

SHANGHAI HIS GOAL

Stating that he wished to get to Shanghai, an unemployed Indian was charged before Mr. Himsforth at the Kowloon Magistracy with being a stowaway on board the s.s. Shihala, a P. & O. vessel, and with entering the Colony without a valid passport.

Admitting guilt to both offences, Malik Khan, of Pershawar with a post office address at Hori Murdan, India, said that he wished to get to Shanghai where he was confident he could obtain work.

Accused, it was stated, was found on the ship one day out of Singapore where he admitted boarding it. The steamer left Singapore on June 5.

The accused was ordered to be expelled from the Colony in addition to being fined $20 or two weeks' jail on both charges. Mr. McEwen appeared for the P. & O. Co.

SOLICITING CHARGE

WOMAN CONVICTED

Soliciting for prostitution was alleged at the Central Magistracy yesterday before Mr. W. Schofield when Wong Mui, 21, described as a married woman was charged with the offence and convicted. A fine of $10 or in default two weeks' hard labour was imposed.

Lance Corporal Ward of the Royal Ulster Rifles Regiment was the complainant. Defendant was a waitress of the Tin Nam tea house situated near Western Market.

Inspector Logan prosecuted.

Complainant stated that on June 9 last at about 11.15 p.m. he was proceeding along Johnstone Road with another soldier, and when he was near house No. 28 he heard somebody asked in English "Where you go?" At the doorway at a little up the stairs was defendant, who escorted complainant. Witness asked his companion to bring along a Chinese constable. The latter returned with District Watchman No. 82. Defendant was then brought to the No. 2 Police Station.

Private Logue, who was with the last witness on the night in question gave corroborative evidence, while Chee Wing, the district watchman told of having defendant detained.

Defendant elected to give evidence. She said that she lived at Kennedy Town and worked as a waitress in the Tin Nam tea house. On June 9, she finished work at about 11 p.m. She knew of waitresses being wanted by two other tea houses from a woman, Sze Mui, and she wanted one of the jobs, so after work that night she went to look for her. On the way she met Sam Mui, a waitress whom she used to work with. They talked for sometime near the doorway of the house concerned in the case, when Sam Mui called complainant, who turned back. He seized one of her hands and she struck him with her open hand. Complainant held witness, and later the district watchman brought her to the Police Station.

Remarking that upon the evidence, he must convict His Worship then passed sentence.

SEQUEL TO A FIGHT

WOMEN IN COURT

An assault involving three coolie women one of whom was an expectant mother, was related during the course of a summons heard at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday. According to medical evidence submitted, as a result of the assault, it was likely that the complainant, a married woman would have a miscarriage. When examined she complained of a pain and although there were no external marks of violence on the abdomen, there were abrasions and scratches on the neck, suggesting a struggle.

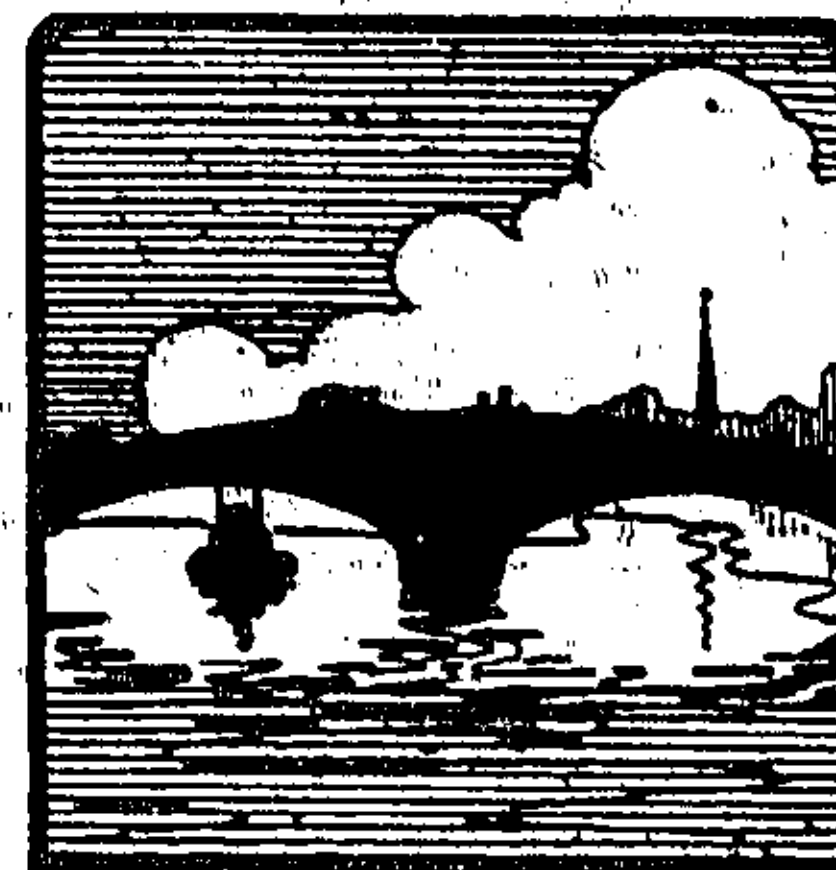

According to Mr. Lee, his client and the two defendants were all coal ask pickers. He would submit evidence that the motive behind the assault, was his client's refusal to join a labour association, of the Sanitary Department. The alleged assault took place in Wai Ching Street when his client was kicked in the abdomen. The summons taken out against the accused, pointed out Mr. Lee was more severe than common assault, and was indictable.

First accused, Yee Mui denied knowledge that complainant was five months pregnant. Witness said that complainant was known as a "crazy woman" and was bad tempered. She was in the habit of challenging people to fight. On the day in question complainant who was carrying two baskets brushed past her in a coal ash yard near Wai Ching Street. She remonstrated with complainant, and a fight started.

The other accused, Mui Fook claimed that she was assaulted by the complainant.

TELEVISION COLOUR

INVENTED IN BACK STREET GARAGE

London, May 29.

Three men, standing in a garage yard in a Peckham (London) back street in the early hours of the morning watched a brilliantly-coloured figure moving on a 6ft. screen.

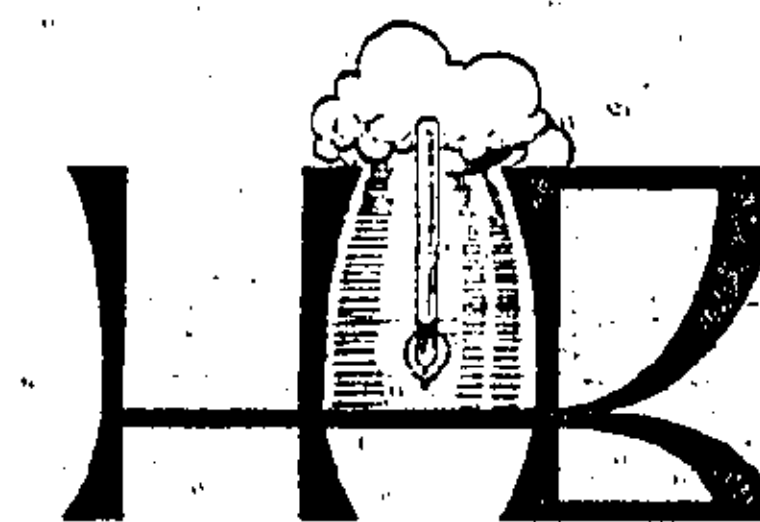

They were testing an experiment which may play havoc with all preconceived ideas of television. The man in charge, Mr. John Wayne, of Shaftesbury-avenue, London, W., after four years' research work has at last discovered what he claims to be coloured television.

At the rear of the garage, heavily curtained, was a wooden cabinet. At the side of the screen stood a loud speaker. In the cabinet twenty-four feet away sat a girl whose head and shoulders were reflected on to the screen. Her complexion, hat, dress and scarf were televised in exactly the same natural colours as they were in ordinary light.

The other two men—a reporter and cameraman—shouted questions at the girl asking her to scratch her nose, smile and wink, in the belief that it was a film.

Mr. Wayne believes that soon he will be able to televise many miles. "It has taken me four years to get this colour idea," he told the "Daily Mirror" "and it is still in its infancy."

SMUGGLED CLOTH IN INDIA

MILLOWNERS' ANXIETY

London, May 27.
Lancashire's trade in cotton goods with China is now so small that the recent revelations of the extent of the smuggling of textiles and other goods which is being done through North China have attracted much less attention than they would have done fifteen, ten, or even five years ago. Smuggling, however, especially if the term is interpreted broadly, is coming to be regarded as a serious question for the cotton industry. Quite apart from such practices as the sale as "British-made" of cloth produced in Japan and merely finished in the United Kingdom, and of the importation into this country as "Empire-made" of Japanese cloth transhipped at Hong Kong, there is the smuggling of cotton and other textiles into India, to which the Millowners' Association, Bombay, has now drawn the attention of the Government of India. The millowners allege that a considerable trade is done in Japanese cotton goods through Calcutta and Khatmandu. The goods are imported through Calcutta in the ordinary way and then sent by rail to Khatmandu. On the Indo-Nepalese frontier the Indian Customs authorities pay full drawback of the import duty levied at Calcutta, after which the goods "trickle" back across the frontier into British India. It is stated that as a result of this trade the Indian mills have lost a good deal of business both in Nepal and in the Indian border districts.

The Millowners' Association suggests that the system of granting a drawback in respect of goods re-exported to Nepal should be stopped, or, if this was not feasible on account of the political relations between the Governments concerned, the Nepal Government should revive the former restrictions regarding the movement of goods from the hills to the plains. If this too was not feasible, it was submitted that the Nepal Government should be induced by the Government of India

LANDLADY SUES FOR RENT

Successful Claim In Summary Court

KOWLOON INCIDENT

A successful claim for $400, due for board and lodging, was made by Effie Jean Greenburg, of Middle Road, Kowloon, before the Acting Puisne Judge (Mr. Justice Williams) in the Summary Court yesterday.

Mrs. Greenburg sued Dudley Collins Cheeseman, consulting engineer, of Hankow Road, Kowloon, for $200, being a month's board and lodging, and $200 in lieu of a month's notice to quit.

Mr. W. A. Mackinlay told the court that Mrs. Greenburg conducted boarding houses at Kent Road, Kowloon Tong, and "Chardhaven," Middle Road, Kowloon. Cheeseman and his wife occupied a flat in the Kent Road house in September, October and November last year and moved to "Chardhaven" in December. They left there on January 1 without having paid the rent for December or given notice.

Mrs. Greenburg told Mr. H. N. Chau (for Cheeseman) that she did not have an interview with Cheeseman on January 1 at Kent Road where he asked her to wait until January 15 for the rent and that she agreed on the stipulation that he was to vacate the premises.

Mr. Chau: Did you ever tell him to leave "Chardhaven" before 2 p.m. on January 1?—No.

Mrs. Greenburg said that after Cheeseman and his wife left, the flat was vacant for about six weeks.

Replying to questions by Mr. Justice Williams, Mrs. Greenburg said Cheeseman and his wife occupied a room with a balcony and bathroom. About 2 p.m. on January 1, she continued, the No. 1 boy at "Chardhaven" telephoned her saying that Cheeseman was taking his bags away. She told the boy to stop him and understood that he had attempted to do so but Cheeseman pushed him aside and went into the taxi.

The No. 1 boy told the court that he tried to stop Cheeseman who said it was none of his business.

Mr. Chau: Did he give you a dollar, cunsha and some keys?—No.

Cheeseman, in evidence, said he paid his rent regularly until December when, because he was not in permanent employment, he asked Mrs. Greenburg to wait until January 15. She replied that she could not wait and asked him to vacate the premises as she had someone coming to take the flat. He returned to "Chardhaven" and received a telephone call from Mrs. Greenburg asking him to leave by 2 p.m. As he left "Chardhaven," he tipped one of the boys a dollar for carrying his bags downstairs.

PAID RENT SINCE

After leaving "Chardhaven" he went to another boarding house and paid his rent on January 15.

To Mr. Mackinlay Cheeseman admitted that while at "Chardhaven" he had advertised for other accommodation because he thought it likely that his employment would mean him taking the 6 o'clock ferry to Cheung Chau and he wanted to be near the wharf. He had paid his rent regularly since leaving "Chardhaven," he said.

Mr. Mackinlay: Well, why haven't you paid the money you owe Mrs. Greenburg?—I would have paid it had not Mrs. Greenburg come round to my landlady and upset things so that I had to move again.

In entering judgment for plaintiff for the amount claimed and costs Mr. Justice Williams said he believed Mrs. Greenburg's story.

Mr. Chau asked that Cheeseman be permitted to pay the money by instalments as he was being paid only $150 a month. Mr. Justice Williams replied that the money had been owing for some time and refused to make an order.

Mr. W. A. Mackinlay was for plaintiff and Mr. H. N. Chau for defendant.

to levy a duty of at least 30 per cent on foreign goods imported into that State through British India. The existing duty appeared to be 34 per cent, which provided sufficient attraction to the smuggler, but with a 30 per cent duty it was thought that the merchants would not cover the cost of bringing the goods from Nepal to British territories.

JAPANESE BROKERS OPPOSE BAN

MOVE STARTED TO MODIFY CUSTOMS REGULATIONS

Shanghai, June 8.

Claiming that legitimate Japanese trade was being adversely affected by regulations recently adopted by the Chinese Maritime Customs, the Shanghai Japanese Customs' Brokers Association on Saturday resolved to seek the amendment of these rules, the "Shanghai Mail" said in an exclusive report yesterday. The Japanese consular authorities will be approached with a petition to take the necessary action, the daily added.

According to the brokers, the Customs, in their campaign to curb smuggling, have prohibited the transportation of goods on ships bound for Shanghai unless these are declared on the cargo manifest.

It has been the practice, the paper said, for Japanese importers of fruit and other perishables to request friends coming from Japan to bring with them such goods in the form of excess baggage. This was done, it was explained, to expedite the transportation of these articles. Charges for storage space on board ship were paid the shipping line, as were import duties upon arrival in China.

The new rules prohibit this practice and make the shipping company liable to a heavy fine in case they are violated.

In the case of articles placed in the purser's care by patrons of the line and transported free of charge, the new rules require that duties be paid at the Custom House on the Bund, whereas formerly such levies were payable to officials on board ship.

This is causing great inconvenience, especially in cases where samples are being brought in. Under the new regulations, the article must be appraised and duty paid for it at the Custom House even though it may be "Just a fountain pen," the "Mail" said. (N.C.D.N.)

ARMY PAGEANTRY

Military History In Review

PREPARING THE ALDERSHOT TATTOO

Aldershot, May 24.

Nearly 5,000 troops will take part in the Aldershot Tattoo, which is to be held at Rushmore Arena from June 11 to 13 and June 16 to 20 inclusive. The resources of the Aldershot Command will be supplemented by four infantry battalions from the Eastern Command—the 2nd Devonshire, 1st Royal Berkshire, 2nd Royal West Kent, and 2nd Royal Ulster Rifles, each complete with band and drums. In addition, the mounted bands of the 3rd Carabiniers and 5th Royal Inniskilling Dragoon Guards are coming respectively from Hounslow and Colchester, also the drums of the 2nd Battalion, The Lancashire Fusiliers, and 2nd Battalion, The East Surrey Regiment.

Although the first public performance is more than a fortnight distant, most of the scenery is already in position at the arena. The chief representation in the foreground is the thirteenth-century Caernarvon Castle, which will be a feature of the pageant, showing the presentation of the first Prince of Wales to the Welsh chieftains and people in 1284. A Burmese town, with golden-domed pagodas, is another striking scenic property. This introduces an incident from the Rangoon River Expedition, 1924, in which British artillery and infantry will be seen landing from tall-masted men-of-war and then assaulting the stockades with scaling-ladders.

The display by the 1st Cavalry Brigade, which comprises The Queen's Bays, The Royal Scots Greys, and the 4th Queen's Own Hussars, is given additional interest by the fact that this brigade is to be mechanized. A squadron of present-day cavalry will be seen going into bivouac behind the lines after a day's work on active service. While the men sleep there is a vision of a column of cavalry of other days. Finally, a highly mechanized detachment of the future is seen in action. The concentration of this item into the space of 15 minutes cannot have been an easy matter, as more than 100 horses are picketed and then saddled up again when the alarm is given in the bivouac. Past and present firing exercises will contrast the artillery muzzle-loaders and infantry firelocks of the Waterloo period with present-day mechanized artillery and infantry.

"The Pageant of the Drums" traces the history and development of cavalry kettledrums and trumpets, and infantry drums and fifes, since the seventeenth century. In the musical item the whole of the 21 bands and 11 corps of drums of the infantry regiments will be massed with the mounted bands, and appear with a battalion of torch bearers. These bands outnumber any which have been heard on previous occasions at Aldershot. The massed bands and drums will also accompany a physical training display by 666 men of the 2nd Battalion, The Buffs and 1st Battalion, The South Staffordshire Regiment. Massed pipe bands of five battalions are to take part in the Scottish display, in which Bruce is seen visiting a part of the Scottish Army before Bannockburn. "Youth" is the theme of the final tableau, which brings the whole of the performers into the arena.

This year's electrical current for the searchlights will be converted from the mains supply, as the Tattoo now has its own electrical sub-station. The current was previously generated by searchlight motor-lorries.

Convicted for stealing a bathing costume and a pongee silk jacket from Lam Wai Man, jeweller of No. 38 Ice House Street, Ng Kwai was sentenced to two months' hard labour by Mr. Balfour at the Central Magistracy yesterday.

Lo Sang and Chang On charged with trespassing on the Yau-mat Wharf on this side of the harbour was each fined $5 or in default seven days' hard labour.

It was stated that the wharf concerned was a spare one, not being used by passengers. There had been some hardship in driving lotteries who were often found on the wharf.

REFRESHER COURSES FOR EX-NAVY MEN

Probable In Near Future

TO FORM RESERVES IN EMERGENCY

BY HECTOR C. BYWATER

London, May 29.

There is, I understand, a strong probability that refresher courses for retired naval officers will be instituted in the not distant future.

How widespread is the interest in this matter was shown to me by the number of letters which followed my article in "The Daily Telegraph" on Tuesday, on the plight of retired naval officers with no facilities for brushing up their professional knowledge, or debarred by regulations from joining any of the other services, including the Territorial Army.

There is good reason to believe that the competent authorities are alive to the anomalies of the situation and by no means unsympathetic in their attitude.

Until recently the reserve of officers retired from the Navy was so large that no difficulty was thought, would have been found in recalling sufficient officers with comparatively recent service to bring the Fleet up to mobilisation strength in an emergency. Now, however, this reserve is becoming exhausted.

As regards the entry of such officers into the Territorial Army, I understand that each application is considered on its merits by the naval authorities.

In certain cases permission has been granted ex-naval officers to accept Territorial commissions, with the proviso that the Admiralty shall have first claim on their services in the event of a national crisis.

Retired naval officers whose first application for a Territorial commission did not prove successful would, I think, be well-advised to try again. On the other hand, the prospect that refresher courses in purely naval training may soon be established may satisfy ex-officers who would prefer, in case of need, to serve their country afloat.

The correspondence evoked by my article is a fine tribute to the public spirit of former naval officers, who so ardently desire to serve their country again should they ever need their services.

GROWN-UP QUADS TELL WHAT IT'S LIKE!

GOOD FUN—BUT THEY DON'T WANT QUADS!

New York, May 24.

Four pretty girls have been telling me what it's like to be a quadruplet, writes a correspondent.

They are Mona, Roberta, Leota and Mary Keys, aged twenty, who passed through New York on their way back to college in Texas after a visit to the Dionne quintuplets in Canada.

Dressed exactly alike, they all spoke at once in assuring me they were not jealous of the Canadian quins, the British quads, and the New Jersey quads, who are at present stealing the limelight.

When I asked what sort of time the baby quins and baby quads will have when they grow up, the girls replied: "From our experience, they will have a fine time."

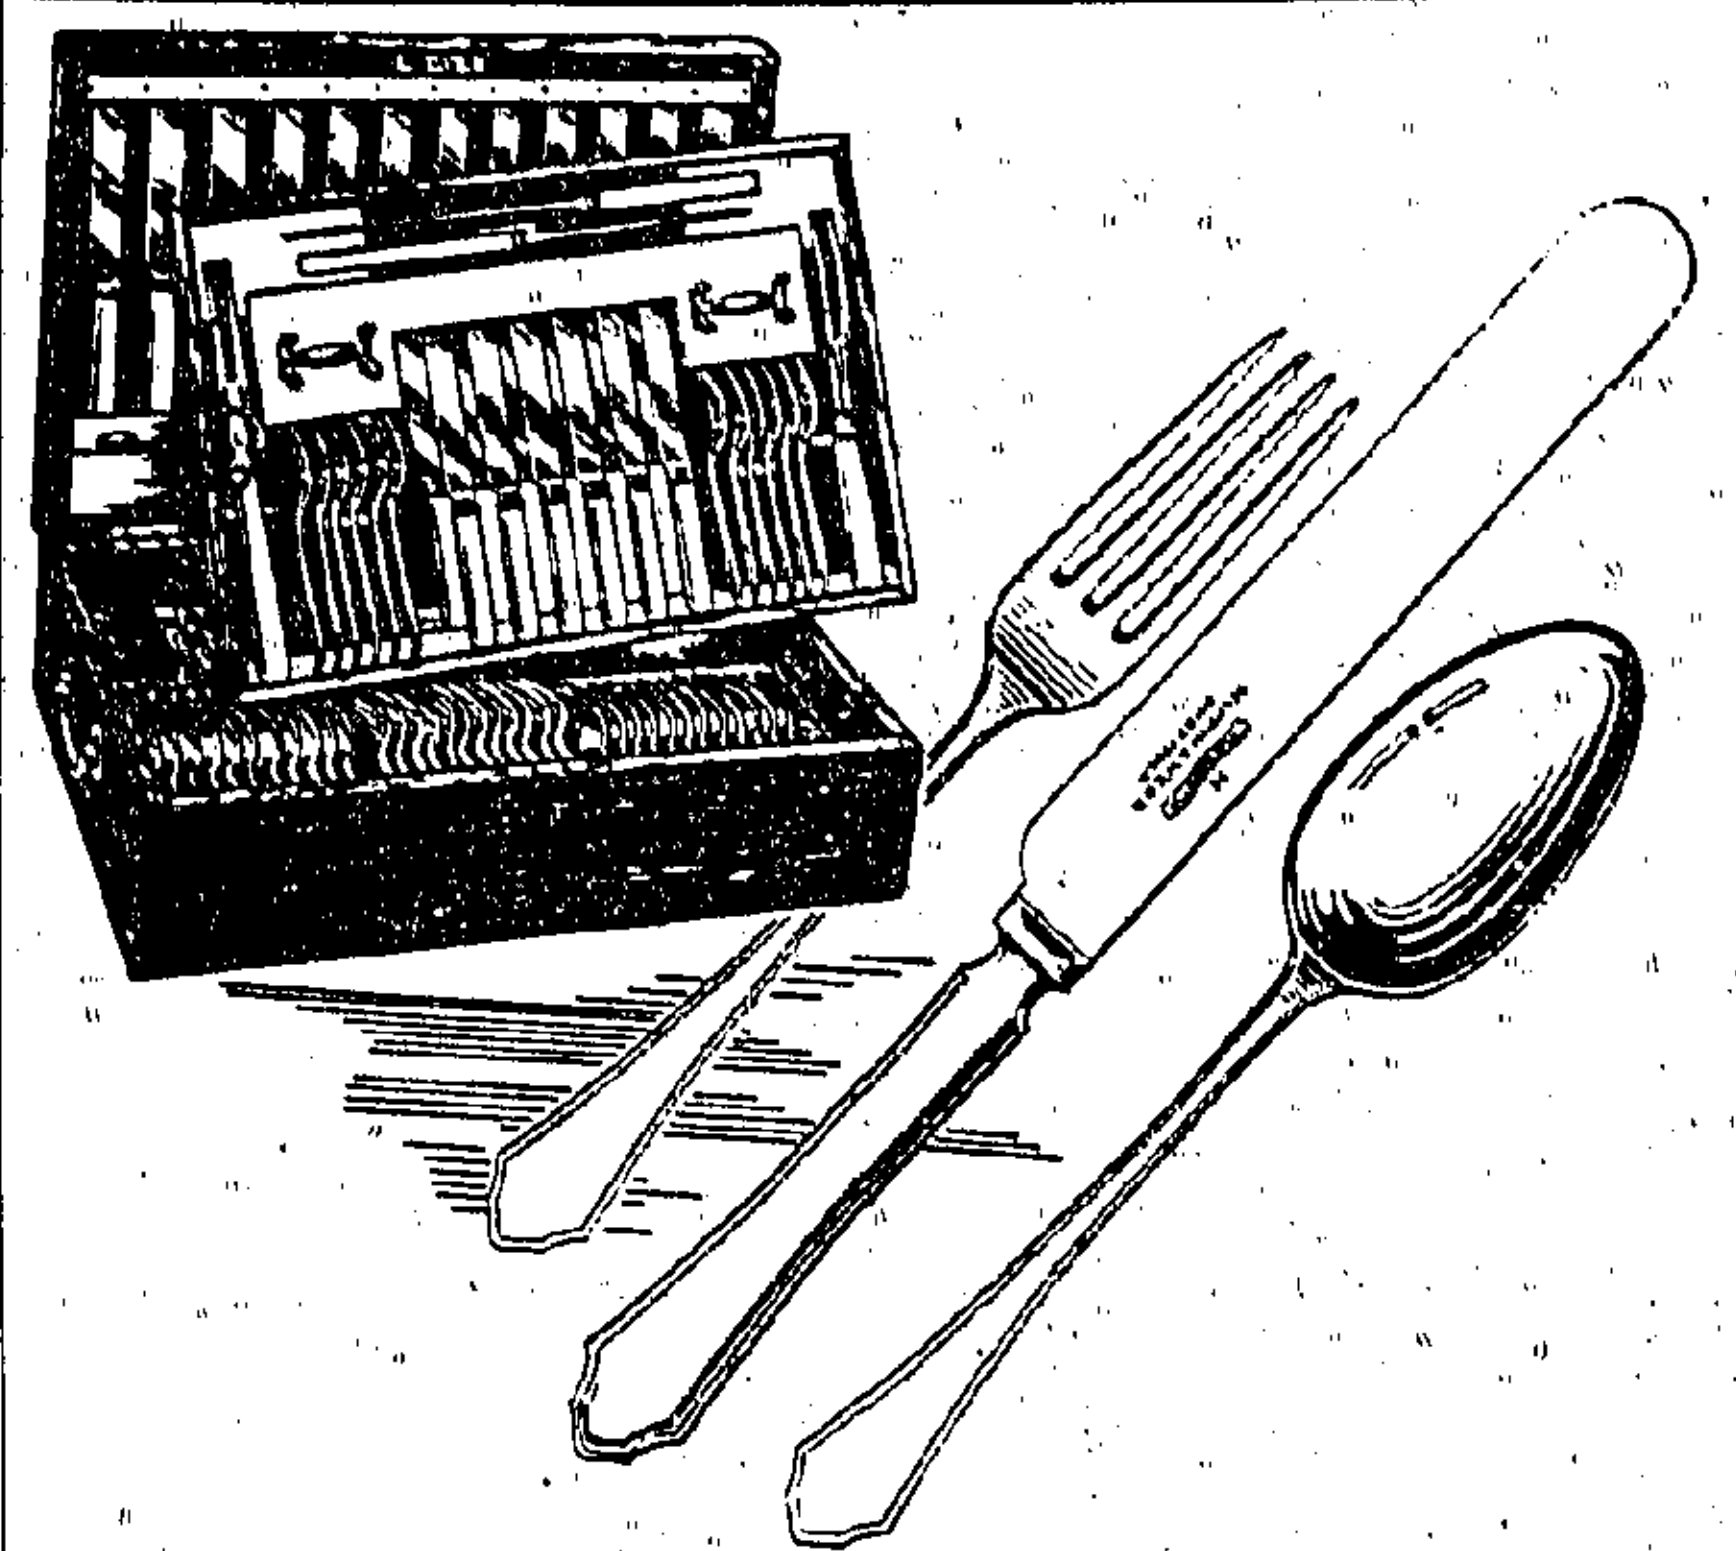

"We always agree," said either Mona or Roberta (I couldn't tell one from the other), "because we have the same circle of friends and the same tastes."

"Of course we go through life with everyone staring at us, but when we were very young we decided not to mind inquisitive people, so we enjoy ourselves wherever we go."

The girls have many young men friends at Baylor University, Texas where they are studying. "But," confessed either Mona or Roberta, "they don't know which is me and which is my sister. We are too much alike."

These happy quadruplets want always to remain together. They plan to go on the stage as singers, touring the theatres and concert platforms of the world.

Summing up, the girls agreed that being quads is great fun, although they share a common hope that if they marry they won't have quads!

"PRINCE'S" PLATE

By MESSRS. MAPPIN & WEBB.

THERE IS DEEP SIGNIFICANCE

In the way time proves the real worth of beautiful things, time adds to their value—indeed, time is often the test of their quality and an index of their measure of perfection. In the case of good plate, quality is the only criterion of value and the ultimate test of that quality is in time and use, that is why "PRINCE'S PLATE" is so unquestionably worthy of the unrivalled reputation it has achieved.

THE CHURCH AND DIVORCE

Slight but welcome indications of less unbending attitude towards the vital problems of marriage and divorce were visible in the Upper House of Convocation recently.
The Report under discussion was that of the Joint Committee of the Convocations of Canterbury and York which, while recommending certain additional grounds for the annulment of marriage, acknowledged that "in the present condition of general society, so far as secular legislation is concerned, some provision for dissolving the marriage bond is inevitable." But the Committee were strongly in favour of the grounds being "severely limited, even in secular legislation," and a still more un-bending temper was manifest in the passages dealing with the indissolubility of marriage, the remarriage of divorced persons, and their admission to Holy Communion. To concede just as little as possible and fight a continual rearguard action represented the main tenor of the Report, and the most liberal speeches did not carry the Upper House of Convocation very far.

Both the Primate and the Bishop of Winchester reluctantly allowed that circumstances may make it impossible for the State to refuse further legislation for extending the grounds of divorce.
We should prefer to put it much more forcibly and say that public opinion will not allow Parliament to postpone much longer legislation on the lines powerfully advocated by the late Lord Buckmaster. The general public conscience is shocked and revolted by the law which condemns to lifelong unhappiness and often to acute misery thousands of persons who are fast bound by chains from which they cannot escape, and the justice or necessity of which they deny.
There is, moreover, a growing impatience with the stubborn ecclesiastical conscience which refuses them relief, on a point of dogma, or on the interpretation of a text. The Primate said that the idea of a "bargain" between Church and State was repugnant to him, and he and other equally high-minded and liberal-minded Churchmen are terribly afraid of seeming to lower the Church's standard of morality or weaken her faithful witness to the highest ideal. That attitude compels respect, but the answer, as many see it, is that while the Church should continue to uphold the highest standards, her administration should ever be guided by the law of charity. Nor are educated people, in these days, unaware that wherever the Church has interpreted her rules most narrowly she has failed most completely.

Speaking on the proposal that it should be left to the Bishop to decide whether a guilty divorced person who has remarried should be admitted to Communion, Dr.
Garbett said that at present he had "no power" to allow such admission. Yet in other circumstances Bishops assume the powers they lack, and break with a thoroughly easy conscience the laws which fetter their freedom.
The rubric of the Church of England relating to the administration of Holy Communion is, in fact, nowhere carried out; but it distinctly states that the purpose of turning back "the open and notorious evil liver" is to prevent,
not the Curate, but the Congregation, from being "offended."
Public opinion is far more interested in this problem of the Church and marriage than in the problem of the Establishment, and if the desire of the two Houses of Convocation is to fill the churches and not to empty them they will wisely allow their deliberations to be ruled by the spirit of charity.

LECTURE IN BERLINChina's Internal Reconstruction

"Hong Kong Daily Press" Special.

Berlin, June 11.

The Chinese National Government's programme of reconstruction was outlined to-day by Minister Tang Leang Li in a lecture at the German College of political science before a big audience. The Minister, who is visiting Germany for the purpose of studying national and socialist institutions, stressed the importance for the Chinese people of the struggle against communism since the successful carrying out of the task of internal reconstruction depended on the suppression of the communist evil.

The speaker alluded to the hopes entertained by China after the conclusion of the great war or cooperation with Soviet Russia which it was thought would support China in her resistance against the domination of the capitalist countries, but soon it became obvious that this was not the aim of Moscow and that their promise to abstain from communist propaganda in China was valueless.

After the recapitulating efforts made by the Chinese Government since 1927 to suppress the communist movement, the Nanking Government had always regarded the military successes achieved against the communist forces as less important than the moral formation of Chinese people and the creation of a new type of Chinese citizen.

After surveying the various tasks imposed by China's economic development such as road-building, regulation of rivers, reorganization of agriculture, promotion of hygiene, the Minister concluded with a reference to the favourable state of commercial relations between Germany and China and declared "Young China looks with admiration on New Germany."

The speaker was warmly applauded.

big surprise is announced. The Dornier Aeroplane Works are busy with the construction of a new big seaplane, the DO20 a model of which has already been on exhibi-

measurements do not vary greatly from the type of the DOX built a few years ago, but technically and economically the new model will be a great improvement. The DO20 will be fitted with 8 Diesel engines of 800 to 1000 HP which give it a speed of 150 to 185 m.p.h.
over a radius of over 300 miles.
The machine will weigh nearly

HONG KONG THE IDEAL COLONY?

The Social Life

Having endeavoured to tackle serious local problems with eugenics as the main theme, in the last three articles of these series; I am determined, this week, to deal with another problem, which is far less serious but undoubtedly effects vast numbers of citizens none the less.

Here we are living in a British colony, side by side with fellow citizens of every imaginable race;
and what do we British people do in the way of mixing with other nationals?

We have unusual opportunities of exchanging ideas with people of vastly different outlook to ourselves; and yet we seem content to just jog along in the same old groove with never a thought of all that we are missing in life, and without experiencing the slightest urge to contribute towards international understanding.

I suppose we are naturally bad mixers. Perhaps it is the result of our island ancestry and our cold northern blood. And, the typical Englishman is an inordinately shy person, and is apt to become quite inarticulate just when he wants most to establish friendly relations with the foreign stranger, who, if he only realised it, is more than willing to come half way to meet him with friendly overtures.

Here, in Hong Kong, we are in the position of hosts to the strangers within our gates, and as such should surely make more effort to get to know other nationals, and make ourselves generally pleasant to them.

DIFFICULTIES IN OUR SOCIAL LIFE

There are difficulties—obvious difficulties. To begin with, the climate is against us. The damp atmosphere of the early summer months seems to sap one's vitality, and every mental or physical effort is twice as great as it ought to be. After the day's work is done "office wallahs" want to hurry home and get their feet up and their collars off; while their women folk are quite content to play their afternoon bridge in a comfortable verandah before joining their husbands for a quiet domestic evening. The effort of dressing up and going out again is a most unwelcome proposition, generally to be avoided at all costs.

AUTUMN AND WINTER
So much for the summer. There is still our glorious autumn and winter to account for. Surely we ought to be able to pull ourselves together and be more gregarious then. But somehow those ideal months are all too short for us to make up arrears of neglected social life. We never seem able to see enough of our special friends with the same interests, and we find ourselves constantly putting off wider social activities.

A few public spirited people with the necessary means, and a natural gift for entertaining rise up from time to time, and become famous for their delightfully cosmopolitan parties at which people of every conceivable nationality meet and enjoy themselves enormously. Lady Southorn was an ideal hostess in this way, and the
"Hong Kong Women's International Club" to which she devoted so much interest is a wonderful example of what can be done to make people fraternise in club life.

A SOLUTION TO THE PROBLEM

And now I come to a solution for our social problem. It would be a wonderful thing for Hong Kong
if there was a vast International Club, for men and women, situated in an easily accessible place both to Hong Kong and Kowloon, with a capacity for a large membership and facilities for games both indoor and out.

The ideal situation for such an institution would be at the top of a hill within easy reach of both the town and Kowloon. As most of the men folk work on Hong Kong side the Peak seems the obvious place—on the tram route for preference, so that a car would not be necessary for transport.

More difficulties at once present themselves. Where is there a convenient vacant site? That occupied by the Peak Hotel would be suitable if there were enough adjacent land for grounds. I wonder what will be done with the Queen
Mary is opened?

Yes, there are great difficulties over this social problem in Hong Kong. But nothing is insuperable if the will is there. And if only the British citizens will be more public spirited, and willing to express the friendliness which they undoubtedly feel towards other nationals great things may yet be accomplished; and Hong Kong will be an example to the world as the British Colony with the most cordial International Life.

To Press

"Hong Kong Daily Press" Special

Paris, June 10.
Marshal Badoglio, Conqueror of Abyssinia, gave the "L'Intransigeant" an interview, which was published yesterday.

The interview is concerned with the rumours of a mobilisation in Northern Italy, on the Brenner Pass.

"We are not preparing mobilisation, nor are we taking any measures for an attack. Admittedly our army is equal to any, and will know how to defend itself; should that be necessary. That,
however, is all!"

Badoglio added that it would take years to reorganise the newly conquered country. The occupation troops would be reduced little by little as far as that was compatible with order and safety. Naturally those Italian soldiers who wished to do so would be permitted to settle down in Abyssinia. Badoglio denied any likelihood of a conflict with any neighbouring Mandate Power, because the Italian soldiers belong to the most disciplined in the world.

CIVIL WAR ASSUMES REALITY

Five Kwangsi Divisions Advancing

HANKOW PREPARED TO STAND SIEGE

Squadron Of 'Planes Sent To Hengchow

Changsha, June 11.

Nanking troops poured in all night long from Hankow. The city is humming with military activities as it is prepared to stand a siege. A squadron of aeroplanes flew off this morning in the direction of Hengchow whither about 40,000 Southern troops are reported to be rapidly advancing.

Indicating Nanking's anxiety to avoid hostility unless it is inevitable, the troops have been ordered to take up the initiative of withdrawal and the movement of Government troops stationed to the southwest of Changsha continues.

In the meanwhile Hankow reports state that reinforcements are expected to arrive at any moment from the North en route to Huanan.

WILD EXCITEMENT IN CITY

Hengchow, June 11.

Five divisions of Kwangsi troops from Yungchowfu totalling about 25,000 were reported this evening within a few miles of Hengchow which is still occupied by Nanking forces.

Kwangtung forces are advancing along the Hankow-Canton Railway from Chengchow and have reached a point about fifty miles southward.

The prospect of a clash with the advancing Southern troops is causing the wildest excitement in the city.—Reuter

SINO-JAPANESE TALKS

Nanking, June 11.

Major-General Seluchi Kita, military attache of the Japanese Embassy, yesterday called on General Feng Yu-hsiang, Vice-President of the Military Affairs Commission, and enquired whether the Chinese Government has allied with European and American powers against Japan.

The attache emphasized that China and Japan should cooperate on the Pan-Asiatic principle.

In reply General Feng stated that China and Japan should respect each other on the basis of non-aggression. It is a mistake for Japan to continue her aggression in China.

It was learned that General Kita has a very important mission in visiting Nanking. He also called on General Chiang Kai-shek, President of the Executive Yuan, and Mr. Chang Chun, the Foreign Minister.—Union News

GENERAL CHIANG'S DILEMMA

Military Action If Peace Efforts Fail

Shanghai, June 11.

With China standing on the brink of civil war, General Chiang Kai-shek is striving to effect a peaceful settlement. At present it is believed he is endeavouring to make peace with Kwangtung, in which event Kwangsi will be forced to capitulate.

If General Chiang Kai-shek fails in this effort he will be compelled to engage in hostilities against the combined Kwangsi and Hunanese forces, and probably attempt to halt the advance of the Kwangsi forces at some point between Hengchow and Changsha.

In the meanwhile mystery shrouds the attitude of the Japanese whose local officials do not take a serious view of the anti-Japanese feature in the southern revolt which is universally regarded as internal politics, but hint that they have no knowledge as to the possible extent of the repercussions.

JAPAN ACCUSED

Chinese politicians now openly accuse Japan of instigating the southern movement, especially Kwangsi, which reportedly employs a hundred Japanese advisers, and recall that the unofficial British air mission to Nanning was displaced in December last year by Japanese pilots and instructors who are still there.

The same circles also point out the alleged credits granted by Japan to purchase munitions, Japanese economic penetration in Kwangsi, and preferential treatment to Japanese traders.

CHOICE OF ALTERNATIVE

Foreign observers take the view that that Japanese policy is at present in the balance, threatening to support the southern movement against Chiang Kai-shek unless the latter meets Japan's demands in making Japanese control in North China absolute.

There is general sympathy with Chiang Kai-shek's predicament among all local Chinese. It is generally felt that Kwangsi and not Kwangtung are the prime movers.—Reuter

HIGH PRAISE FOR CHINA

Progress Under Difficulties

MR. BERNARD'S TRIBUTE

London, June 11.

At the annual meeting of the British Chinese Corporation, Mr. D. G. M. Bernard, Chairman, said it is a notable tribute to the tenacity and essential solidarity of the Chinese people that during all the toll and trouble occasioned by civil wars and devastating floods in the Yangtze and Yellow River, Nanking appears to have been successful in slowly but surely consolidating its position and extending the area wherein the writ of its authority runs.

Moreover, the Central Government has been able to undertake a constructive and economic policy including construction of important railways.

Mr. Bernard drew attention to the fact that the Corporation's collaboration in the Hangchow-Ningpo Railway marked a new departure of our relations with China. "We staked our reputation on the word of China and are in effect inviting the subscribing public to pass a vote of confidence in the Chinese Government."

Mr. Bernard paid a tribute to China's progress in settlement of debts and success of her new currency. The general economic position was "favourable if political exigencies can be adjusted, but the foreign money market must remain closed to any new Chinese issue until the situation is cleared up by settlement of loans in default."

HAPPENINGS IN CHINA

LONDON PRESS OPINION

London, June 11.

The "Daily Telegraph" to-day says "the rapidly moving events must presently compel a degree of attention to happenings in China that have been obscured by events nearer home."

Marshal Chiang Kai-shek is plainly not convinced that the time has arrived to challenge Japan, but that mood won't discourage Japanese expansionist activity on the northern frontiers.

Canton is demanding of Nanking that a halt shall be called to the relentless undermining by Japan of the whole fabric of what Government there is in China, the paper says.

No more certain way of bringing peace to China could be devised than through Anglo-Japanese co-operation, developing Chinese agriculture and communications, for the main cause in making China an easy victim of aggression lies in the fact that her enormous resources have never properly been utilised.

Provided wars which might overwhelm the whole of China are avoided there is apparently a promise in the conversations at present proceeding between Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, the British economist, and the Japanese Ministers.—Reuter

FRENCH LABOUR SITUATION

Features Of Blum's New Bills

STRIKE MOVEMENT CONTINUES

Paris, June 11.

The Chamber is busy discussing M. Leon Blum's New Deal policy and bills submitted. In addition to Bills for collective labour contracts, forty-hour week and holidays with pay, M. Blum submitted two Bills in one of which ex-servicemen's pensions will be exempt from taxation and the other will rescind the pay cuts of civil servants.

The strike situation is better and agreements have been signed in many industries for resumption of work.

The workers in the metal, building, groceries trades and insurances were expected to return to work yesterday, but none returned. Some 150,000 miners and 100,000 textile workers are expected to resume work to-day.

In Southern France, however, employees of cafes and restaurants declared a general strike this morning and eight thousand butcher boys also started a walk-out.—Reuter's Bulletin Service

Jerusalem, June 11.

The first organised and determined attack on a Jewish settlement in the plain, in the vicinity of Armageddon, was beaten off yesterday after British troops intervened.

The action started when a large force of armed Arabs ambushed a party of Jewish constables and watchmen, who were patrolling the fields.

The Arabs opened fire upon them from both sides of the road on which they were marching.

The police behaved with considerable courage and advanced on their assailants.

Meanwhile, reinforcements of British police, detachments of the Royal North Lancashire Regiment and the Transjordan Frontiersmen were rushed up from different parts of the plain.

Rifle and machine-gun firing among the hills lasted for two hours. The Arabs finally drew off.

POLITICAL MUDDLE IN EUROPE

FORTHCOMING MEETING AT GENEVA

FRENCH DESIRE FOR MEETING WITH BRITAIN

("Hong Kong Daily Press" Special)

Paris, June 11.

The French Government's desire to bring about a meeting between the British and French ministers before the session of the League Council opens at Geneva is confirmed by to-day's newspapers which state that the French Ambassador in London, M. Corbin, has been instructed to inform the British Government of this wish. Nothing so far is known, however, concerning the place or date of the suggested meeting.

The newspapers affirm that the conversation between the Foreign Minister, M. Delbos, and the Italian Ambassador, Count Cerruti on Wednesday turned not only on the Abyssinian question but also on the European situation.

At the same time there is reason to believe that Italy is prepared to show accommodation to the League over the annexation of Ethiopia and that Signor Grandi touched upon this point.

The nature of any accommodation on this matter has not been disclosed up to the present. It is stated in unofficial circles, for example, that a settlement might be facilitated if Italy undertook to administer Ethiopia in conformity with the principles of a League mandate.

Further meetings are expected between Signor Grandi and officials of the Foreign Office.

In the meantime, Great Britain has not yet formulated a policy on Geneva, and the projected meeting between Mr. Anthony Eden and M. Delbos, the French Foreign Minister, has been temporarily postponed.—Reuter

ANGLO-ITALIAN TALKS

London, June 11.

There were further discussions yesterday between Signor Dino Grandi, the Italian Ambassador, and Sir Robert Vansittart, Permanent Under-Secretary to the Foreign Office.

It is understood that Signor Grandi made it clear that Italy would leave the League of Nations if sanctions were not raised as a result of the coming meeting of the League Assembly.

INTENSIFICATION OF SANCTIONS

Mr. Chamberlain Disagrees

London, June 10.

Speaking in London last night, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, alluded to the recent circular of Lord Cecil to members of the League of Nations Union which urged pressure on the Government to pursue sanctions, and even intensify them, with the object of still preserving the independence of Ethiopia.

"That is midsummer madness," said Mr. Chamberlain.

Such a policy, he asserted, would only lead to further misfortunes which would divert the minds of practical men from seeking other and better solutions.

The circumstances in which the Italo-Ethiopian dispute began offered the most favourable opportunity for exercise of the League policy of collective security; but that policy, based on sanctions, had been tried out, and had failed.

Referring to the Government's rearmament programme, the Chancellor said the last-coming in such a case had the advantage of making use of the latest and best designs.

"To that extent we have not altogether lost our time," he said, "but on the other hand we have but a short time to prepare ourselves for eventualities."

It was time, said Mr. Chamberlain, that the nations composing the League reviewed the situation and decided to limit the functions of the League so that they would accord with its real powers.

In his opinion that move would go far towards restoring the prestige and moral influence of the League, but naturally the League, with those limitations, could no longer be relied upon by itself to secure the peace of the world.

The Chancellor thereupon advocated regional arrangements, guaranteed by the nations whose interests were vitally concerned.

"Before these conclusions, which are merely provisional, can be carried into action, we must take counsel with others, particularly those Dominions whose partnership with us means so much for the influence of the British Empire and the world.

"Whether we adopt a policy of isolation or alliances, it is essential that we be adequately armed," he concluded.—Reuter

The addendum will be moved after Mr. J. H. Thomas, former Secretary for the Colonies, and Sir Alfred Butt, both of whom were found guilty by the Tribunal of using Budget information to their financial gain, have made their personal statements to the House.

THE DERBY

Aga Khan's Third Victory

MAHMOUD WINS IN RECORD TIME

1. Mahmoud (The Aga Khan)
2. Taj Akbar (The Aga Khan)
3. Thankerton (Mrs. J. Shand)

London, May 28. The Aga Khan won his third Derby yesterday at Epsom when his colt Mahmoud, by Blenheim out of Mah Mahal, a daughter of that wonderful filly Mumtaz Mahal, won by three lengths from his stable companion, Taj Akbar, who was three-quarters of a length in front of Thankerton. Pay Up was fourth and His Grace fifth. The time for the race was 2min. 33.4-sec., which is a record for the race. The winner started at 100 to 8, the second at 6 to 1, and the third at 33 to 1. Pay Up started favourite at 5 to 1 writes a correspondent.

Before describing the race it remains only to congratulate the winner's trainer, Butters, on the condition of the winner and the second, each of whom is in his charge, and to congratulate the owner, the Aga Khan, not so much on winning the race for the third time but on his knowledge of breeding of thoroughbreds which led him to mate a daughter of Mumtaz Mahal with Blenheim, a son of that great Derby sire Blandford. Blenheim is also owned by the Aga Khan and was also owned by him when he won the Derby. Mahmoud is, I think, only the third grey colt to win the Derby and the fourth grey winner of that race, for Tagaris, who won the race before the War, was grey, but she was a filly.

CONDITIONS FOR THE RACE

The conditions for the race were excellent from a spectator's point of view, for the light was good and the afternoon not too warm. There was no sun to blind the sight of the people on the stands who were looking at the race. The going, however, was very hard and probably did not suit many of the runners. Still, the course showed every sign of careful attention. The field was made up as was expected, and there was nothing in the last-minute betting which suggested that anything was wrong with any of the runners. Pay Up who looked well, was favourite in the end, as he had been for a long time in the ante-post betting. Taj Akbar, Noble King and Boswell held their places in the market to the end.

There is nothing that needs to be written about the parade on the course in front of the stands before the race. It passed off without incident. On the whole it must be admitted that the field was not impressive. I suppose that on looks Pay Up was the best, although there was much to like about Boswell and I thought, Taj Akbar. After a somewhat long delay the field sauntered through the paddock and down into the dip, and so at last up to the starting-place. There was no long delay there. Almost at the first time Captain Allison had them away, but Carica tried to anticipate the start, and that is not allowed by Captain Allison. The field had to go back once more, and this time there was trouble. Abjer would not go near to the other horses, and there was also some commotion on the far side of the course during which Thankerton was kicked—not, I think, seriously.

A PERFECT START

At last the field came once more into line, and Captain Allison, who always states that it is the jockeys and not himself who enable him to make such good starts, sent the field away to a perfect start. Abjer, quite properly, lost ground, but not so much as to lose him the race. Walvis Bay also started slowly. Soon after the field had settled down—if in this race they ever do settle down—Barrystar was in front, with Carica close to him. Very soon Carica was in front, followed by Midstream, Barrystar, Pay Up, and Magnet, with Boswell, Abjer, and Spinalist well placed. At the top of the hill Carica was still in front, with Bala Hissar now second and going well. Mahmoud was then not nearer than eighth or ninth. Indeed I must admit that I was not looking for him, and only saw him as he was a grey colt.

Coming down the hill Thankerton had shot from nowhere into the lead, ridden as if the winning-post was at hand. He was well clear at the bottom of the hill, where Bala Hissar was still second. Boswell was then well enough placed to win if he were good enough. Barrystar was still there, while Mahmoud had moved up to

LOCAL SWIMMERS FOR EUROPE

SELECTIONS ANNOUNCED

The decision has been made. Miss Yeung Sau-king and 'Charlie' Chan Chan Hing have been chosen to represent China in the World Olympic at Berlin.

The information just received was to the effect that the officials from the north are taking the Conte Verde on June 28 and will meet Miss Yeung and Chan in Hong Kong, and on the same steamer they will all proceed to Europe. Other swimmers are not known, it being anticipated that Kwok Chun-hang will be included in the party.

This is an undoubted honour for Hong Kong though we cannot predict a series of victories in Berlin for these swimmers. It is a step in the right direction to foster swimming in China.

We wish them all the luck in Europe.

LAWN BOWLS GAME

Open Rink Championship

A very keen and closely contested lawn bowls game was witnessed on Wednesday of the K.D.R.C. green when in the open rink championship.

E. C. Fincher, R. G. Craig, N. J. Bebbington, A. Hyde-Lay (skip) (K.C.C.) beat W. L. Walker, S. M. Whyte, M. Henderson, G. F. Sheriff (skip) by 17 shots to 16.

There was very little to choose between the two rinks, but the consistency of the K.C.C.'s rink won the day.

For the winners R. G. Craig was the outstanding player, while W. L. Walker did Yeoman service for the losers.

OLYMPIC GAMES

(Hong Kong Daily Press Special)

Berlin, June 10.

The first visitors for the Olympic Games have arrived in Germany with the N.D.L. liner "Bremen," from the Philadelphia Olympic Club. The Club, one of a number of Olympic societies formed abroad, was founded in September 1935 and has 500 members, 150 of these have now arrived and will spend the interval till the beginning of the Games with touring Germany and visiting relatives. The Club plans to send five groups to Germany for the Games.

a good place. No one riding today knows better than Smirke where to be in this race at Tattenham Corner. When the opening in the rails, which is roped and shows where the field for the Metropolitan race leaves the straight, was reached Thankerton was four or five lengths in front of Bala Hissar, with Mahmoud moving up still and going easily. It seemed then all Lombard Street to a China orange that Thankerton would win, for he is by Manna, a Derby winner, out of Verdict, the dam of Quashed.

Suddenly, when all seemed over, Thankerton began to stop, and out of the small number of attendants behind came Mahmoud, full of running. It was not yard by yard, nor inch by inch that he caught Thankerton, but he caught him almost before one knew that he had come out after him. And once more the race was over, for there was no suggestion that Mahmoud would stop. Not only was Thankerton beaten by Mahmoud, but he was caught and beaten by Taj Akbar, who had been nearer last than first for a mile. Taj Akbar went past Thankerton, but he could make no impression on Mahmoud, who went on to win by three lengths and would have won if the race had gone on for another quarter of a mile. Thankerton lasted long enough to be third, three-quarters of a length behind the second, and then came Pay Up, fourth, and His Grace fifth. The other placings do not matter.

It cannot be denied that Mahmoud won in great style, nor that he was ridden most admirably by Smirke, who also rode a great race when he won on Windsor Lad. A more perfectly timed finish, or one which gave more pleasure to any one interested not only in the running of horses but also in their riding, could not be imagined.

BILLIARDS

THE PROFESSIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP

London, May 29.

The final heat in the United Kingdom Professional Championship between J. Davis, the holder, and T. Newman was continued at Thurston's Hall in Leicester Square yesterday, when Davis was leading by 2,714. As the match extends over two weeks the advantage obviously was not so great as if the game was half as long, as all of the preliminary games had been. Newman reduced his opponent's lead in the afternoon to 1,894, having the better of some remarkably good play, in which Newman scored 1,087 for an average of 217, while Davis made 707 for an average of 141.

Newman started off in fine style. He was in play with a run of 4 (un-finished), and this he increased to 410 before he failed to make a cushion cannon, but the stroke was affected by the cue ball kicking. His play, as it nearly always is, was artistic and most attractive. The greatest difficulty of all he experienced was when he made the line stroke the second time, when the red ball was left on the spot, the white just above it, and the cue ball near the bair line, the three balls being almost in a line. Newman played a beautiful cannon off the top cushion, but was a little unlucky to break down soon afterwards.

BRILLIANT CANNON PLAY

Small incidents can have a big influence on the scoring. Davis made a winning hazard, but the spot was occupied by the cue ball, and this spoilt the position, the result being that he failed to make a long loser played down the table. Newman had a good chance, but when he had scored 68 he failed to make a little run-through kiss cannon. More important still was the fact that he left the balls in a perfect position for close-cannon play, and Davis made use of the opening to score the first 198 points in a very fine break of 532 by means of a run of 99 cannons. Continuing to score very quickly, chiefly at the top of the table, Davis completed the fourth hundred without much trouble, and then he made a run of 58 cannons, playing the balls a little above the right middle pocket. The last cannon in the run, a little screw stroke, was played left hand. This caused the balls to run wide, and Davis missed the next stroke, a very thin middle-pocket loser.

Although Newman was unfortunate to lose the white at two successive visits to the table when he had scored only a few points, Davis did not score on either occasion, and the second time he left the balls placed well for his opponent. Newman, however, missed a cushion cannon when he had scored 39, and Davis made a quick run of 43 cannons and a shorter run which provided the chief features of a break of 169, at the end of which he failed to make a difficult run-through loser, the object ball kissing the cue ball away.

Up to that point Davis had had the better of the play, but Newman, playing steadily and extremely well, maintained the high standard of scoring. His first stroke was a brilliant forcing screw cushion cannon, and after making a run of 36 cannons he controlled the run of the balls so cleverly in playing a more open game that he did not experience any pronounced difficulties. Newman's play all through a break of 562 (un-finished), with which he played out time, was as good as anyone could wish to see. He did not concentrate on any particular method, but just went on scoring simply and fluently, with scarcely a mistake in the strength of any of the strokes he played. His only other run of cannons was one of 29.

The scores at the interval were:—J. Davis (the holder), 7,068; T. Newman, 5,172.

NEWMAN'S RECORD

Newman established a record, under the revised balk-line rule, at night when he increased his break of 562 (un-finished) to 1,394. The highest break made under the present rules previously was the run of 1,177 by Davis. It is the fourth four-figure break of the season, Davis having made another run of 1,002 early in the present match and H. Lindrum a break of 1,008 in the sealed handicap tournament which was played earlier in the season.

Playing cleverly, Newman made several small runs of cannons, but these were incidental merely to some varied and delightful all-round play. In the end Newman failed to make a difficult cushion cannon.

During the session Newman scored 1,333 for the remarkable average of 444, while Davis made only 252 for an average of 64. Newman also made a break of 489, while Davis's chief run was 115. At the end of the day's play Davis's lead had been reduced to 313.

The closing scores were:—J. Davis, 7,318; T. Newman (in play), 6,505.

WESTCHESTER CUP POLO

Close Victory For America

Hurlingham, June 10. Ten thousand spectators, including the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, witnessed a keen and sporting encounter between England and the United States in the international polo match for the Westchester Cup here to-day. The weather was fine.

England was very unlucky not to equalise in the final chucker when Balding's free hit was stopped by Pedley.

The English team played far above expectations, although they could never get ahead of the Americans. Nevertheless the scores were sometimes level.

Both sides hit very hard in their concentrated attacks. The Americans were a shade the cleverer side and were less prone to mistakes. It was also noticeable that they were slightly better mounted than the English team.

Pedley (seven), Guest and Igleshart, one each scored for America who also benefited from a penalty goal awarded for a foul. Hughes (five), Balding (three) and Guinness replied for England. The chucker scores, with the American scores given first were as follows:—2-1, 4-3, 7-3, 7-6, 10-7, 10-9.

U.S. URGED TO SELL SILVER

HOARDING CONDEMNED

Washington, May 25. Strongly condemning the United States silver policy as "both wasteful and harmful," 82 leading economists have issued a statement urging that there should be no further purchases of this metal.

They also recommend that the Treasury should, over a period of years, dispose of its large stock. By January it amounted to $35,000,000, valued at nearly $70,000,000.

Among the signatories are Prof. Edwin Kemmerer, of Princeton University, the financial editor of the "New York Times" and associate financial editor of the "New York Herald-Tribune."

The statement urges the repeal of Mr. Roosevelt's authority to re-establish bimetalism or subsidise the silver industry. It asserts:—"American silver policy adds to the uncertainty as to the value of the dollar and limits the prospects of currency stabilisation. It is therefore damaging to world trade and finance."

"Neither the economic nor the monetary situation of the United States has benefited by the silver purchase policy."

man also made a break of 489, while Davis's chief run was 115. At the end of the day's play Davis's lead had been reduced to 313. The closing scores were:—J. Davis, 7,318; T. Newman (in play), 6,505.

AUTHORS' EARNINGS

Since writing about the royalties paid on Beatrice Harraden's first novel, "Ships that Pass in the Night," I have learnt that, since 1900, when William Blackwood took over its publication, £1000 has been paid in royalties writes a correspondent. Of this £300 went to re-purchase the copyright, which had been sold outright to the book's first publisher.

By 1900 it had already had an enormous sale, though exactly how large it is impossible to say. Nowadays, with film rights and serial rights, it would make a large fortune for its author.

HUGO'S ROYALTIES

The earnings of popular authors have been steadily increasing. Payment of sixpence a word to Stanley Weyman for serial rights created a sensation, and Stevenson's shilling a word was regarded as fabulously high.

In France the record up to the end of the last century was Victor Hugo, whose royalties in the last year of his life, 1885, amounted to £48,000. Until last year his relations were still getting a large income from his works.

The author who has left the detailed account of his earnings is Troilo, whose autobiography contains a detailed analysis of them. At the end of his life he was making about £3000 per novel.

As an experiment, he published a novel anonymously to see whether this figure bore any relation to the worth of his books. The anonymous novel was coolly received, and brought him in no more than £200. He did not repeat the experiment.

EVESHAM PSALTER BOUGHT FOR £2,400

Famous Manuscript For British Museum

London, May 18. The historic Evesham Psalter owned by the Earl of Dalhousie was sold for £2,400 at Sotheby's to-day after a few seconds of spectacular bidding.

This beautiful illuminated English manuscript, nearly 700 years old, was written for the Benedictine Abbey of Evesham, Worcestershire. It has 283 leaves and is written on vellum.

The full-page miniatures of the Crucifixion and other sacred subjects, in burnished gold and colours, are still almost as brilliant as on the day they were painted.

One miniature of the "Holy Face" is of special delicacy, and bears a striking resemblance to a head of Christ in a psalter of the same period in the British Museum.

This was the work of a St. Albans artist.

WOMEN M.P.S ARE GOOD CHAMPIONS

OF THEIR SEX

London, May 13. There are only nine women M.P.s in the Commons, but during the six months that this Government has been in office the feminine point of view has been heard in every important debate, writes a correspondent.

I propose to line them up in that charming special room of theirs with Lady Astor on the right and little Ellen Wilkinson on the left. In alphabetical order (so that there can be no jealousy) I will tell you something that is, perhaps, new about each of them.

Lady Astor (Cons., Sutton).—Commonly called Nancy. The best-dressed woman in the House. Becomes tremendously excited when temperance and education are discussed. Loves young people; gives them jolly parties, but when the clock strikes midnight Nancy says, "Off to bed, I've a job of work to do in the morning."

The Duchess of Atholl (Cons., Kinross).—An authority on India and education. Wears black and looks very grave. Smiles sweetly when her husband, the Duke, comes across from the Lords to take her out to dinner.

TENNIS "UNBEATABLE"

Miss Thelma Cazale (Cons., East Islington).—The best woman athlete in the House. Unbeatable at tennis. A good companion.

Miss Florence Horsbrugh (Con., Dundee).—A most capable speaker. Looks rather a formidable Scots-woman; actually most delightful. Members love sitting next to Florence and asking her advice on a hundred-and-one matters.

Miss Megan Lloyd George (Lib., Anglesey).—Very proud of her famous father, "Li. G."

"Long factory hours interfere with courtships," remarked a member in the House.

"I don't know anything about such matters," replied Megan, with a toss of her head.

Miss Eleanor Rathbone (Ind., Combined English Universities).—Reminds me of the headmistress of an expensive and prosperous girls' college. Furiously angry with Mussolini; Hailie Selassie is her hero. When members shout "Order!" in response to her innumerable supplementary questions on Abyssinia, she beams.

Mrs. H. B. Tate (Con., Frome).—Lord Halsam's cousin. The only woman air pilot in the Commons. Speaks convincingly on air matters. Popular and handsome M.P.s called her the "Madonna of the House" when she joined them in the last Parliament.

Miss Irene Ward (Con., Wallasey).—An industrial expert. Likes to go down the Northumberland mines to see what "my dear miners" are doing. A friend of royalty and beloved by miners' wives—irrespective of politics.

Miss Ellen Wilkinson (Soc., Jarrow).—Fearless, red-headed, short in stature and sharp of tongue when rebuking the Government. Does not mind lecturing Mr. Baldwin if he has, in her opinion, erred. Tireless. Recently an M.P. called her "the pocket marvel." She is!

'DIVINE FURY'

London, May 18. Baird and Herd have kept their golf and their youth better than the two English members of the great quadrumvirate, Vardon and Taylor, although the nature of their play was such that they had the more reason to retire early from the links. Baird smote the ball so fiercely when in his heyday—with "divine fury" as one writer put it—that only a superb physical frame could have withstood the strain, and Herd still waggles ferociously and frequently despite his 68 years. Vardon, at 66, now rarely plays golf, illness having taken more toll of his strength than his effortless swing. Taylor is the youngest of the four, being a mere 55, and he now talks better than he plays. Still, it should not be forgotten in this year of an Open Championship at Hoylake that only 12 years ago, when he was 53, Taylor would have won a sixth Championship and so tied with Vardon's record. If the scores in the qualifying rounds had counted in the Championship proper.

SCOTTISH LEAGUE LOSES £661

Match Profits Cut Heavily

EFFECT OF WEEK-DAY FIXTURE

London, May 28. A loss of £661 is announced in the Scottish Football League's annual report and balance-sheet, which were issued yesterday. The Inter-League game with England was played on a week-day, and yielded a profit of only £311, compared with £1418 in 1933-34. The profit on the Irish match in Belfast was £7, compared with £233 in 1933-34.

The loss of £661 compares unfavourably with the profit of almost £900 in 1934-35, and it may induce the League to make a special effort to return to the Saturday fixture in future. The English League took away a cheque for £259 and Rangers received £100 for the use of Ibrox Park.

The share of the gate in the Irish International was £152, which barely covered the travelling and other expenses.

The finances of the League are, however, in a satisfactory condition, and £2500 is invested on behalf of the benevolent fund in Glasgow Corporation Mortgage in the bank on savings account there is a further sum of £458.

A sum of £1500 of investment account is also in Glasgow Corporation Mortgage, and in current account, savings bank account, and on hand the League has £418.

The annual general meeting of the League—the forty-sixth—will be held on May 27 at Carlton Place, Glasgow, when Mr. J. McMahon and Mr. J. Bowie, First Division representatives, and Mr. D. McLean, Second Division representative, retire, but are eligible and offer themselves for re-election.

ENGLISH THE ONLY COMMON LANGUAGE OF CHINESE TEAM

Paris, May 28. Mr. Gordon Lum, of the Chinese Davis Cup team, speaks with the accents of an Australian cricketer rather than those of an Oriental lawn tennis player, writes a correspondent.

He lived nearly all his life in Melbourne until he went to Shanghai some years ago.

I reminded him of the popular story that so little do the Chinese team know of each other's language that they always address each other in English.

"That's true," he admitted, "when Kho Sin Kie is around. He's a Fokinese and lives in Java, so the rest of us, who are Cantonese, can't understand him, though we can understand each other."

"You see, though the written language is the same all over China, the spoken one has a number of dialects which vary enormously. For more so, I am told, than Cockney does from Lancashire or Tyneside."

TO PLAY AT WIMBLEDON

"It often happens that Chinese who live only a very few hundred miles apart cannot understand each other's speech. Now an attempt is being made to make of Mandarin—the variety spoken in Peking—a sort of Chinese Esperanto, which everyone will speak."

Three members of the team—Lum, Choy and Kho Sin Kie—will play at Wimbledon. The fourth, Cheng, is in America.

The team were knocked out of the Davis Cup contest by France. They are not likely to go very far in our championship, but as the first Chinese team ever to travel in Europe they are a welcome addition to the family of lawn-tennis nations.

GLASS THAT BENDS

London, May 24. Glass that bends, and will bear a load three to four times greater than a load which will fracture ordinary glass, is the subject of an exhibition at the Building Centre, 158, New Bond-street, W.1.

Known as "armour plate" glass, it will stand violent impacts and wide differences of temperature on its two surfaces.

The exhibits include an electric glass radiator; a glass oven door; a sheet of "armour plate" glass undergoing a twisting test; and a "machine-gun" for throwing pebbles at the glass to test its resistance to impact.

NEW COLOURS FOR THE GUARDS

Presentation By
The King

DETAILS OF CEREMONY

London, May 28.
The King will present new Colours to 1st and 3rd Battalions, Grenadier Guards, 1st, 2nd, and 3rd Battalions, Coldstream Guards, and 2nd Battalion, Scots Guards, on July 16. The ceremony will take place in Hyde Park at 11 a.m.

The six battalions will be formed up in close column of companies on the west side, with the massed bands of the three regiments in the centre of the line. On the east side of the ground will be a dais for the Royal Ladies and other stands containing reserved seats for spectators, while on the north and south sides will be arranged unreserved seats for spectators and standing-room for the general public. The old Colours will be posted about the centre of the parade and in line with the outer flank of their respective battalions. The parade will be under command of the Major-General.

The King will ride in procession from Buckingham Palace, accompanied by an escort, and will enter the arena of the parade at the south-east corner. His Majesty will be received with a Royal Salute, after which the line will be inspected.

As soon as the inspection is complete the leading company of each battalion, acting as an Escort for the Colour, will come out and, forming outwards, will be halted opposite the old Colours, which will then be taken over in the usual way. The escorts will subsequently be turned away from their battalions and be stepped off in file in slow times. After executing a double wheel they will return to their original places with their battalions. The old Colours will then be turned inwards and, wheeling towards the saluting base, will proceed in pairs in slow time to the tune of "Auld Lang Syne" denfing past on either side of his Majesty and finally disappearing behind the dais.

PROCESSION OF CLERGY

The bands will then carry out a "troop, marching to and fro" to their front and rear. Drums will be piled on a platform which will have been erected in the centre of the parade. The new Colours will be laid against the drums and the clergy will process out and take post on the west side of the platform, facing east. The King, who in the meanwhile will have dismounted, will also move out to the platform, accompanied by the colonels and lieutenant-colonels of regiments.

The consecration service (which will be amplified) will then proceed, after which his Majesty will address the troops. The new Colours will then be presented, the Colour Party (consisting of the commanding officer, two senior majors, and the two senior lieutenants) of each battalion mounting the platform in turn to receive them. Having received the Colours, the Colour Parties will take post opposite their respective battalions. As soon as all the Colours have been presented, they will be marched in slow time to join their battalions, the band playing "God Save the King." Battalions will then march past in quick time, after which the parade will be reformed and the Royal Salute will again be given.

His Majesty will then ride back to Buckingham Palace at the head of the troops, who will march in column of four.

The price of reserved seats will be 15s. and that of unreserved seats 2s. Applications for reserved seats must reach the Staff Captain, London District, Horse Guards, S.W.1, by June 1.

Arrangements will be made for standing accommodation for any Old Comrades with their wives and the near relatives of those on parade who desire it near the saluting base. Applications should be made by June 30 through the battalion and regimental orderly room concerned as accommodation will be limited.

proposed to submit to shareholders when the proper time arrived.

The report was unanimously adopted.

THE ASSAULT ON EVEREST

Mr. Ruttledge's Task
ENDURANCE AND COURAGE

(BY C. F. MEADE)

London, May 28.

This year's campaign on Everest has been slowly and steadily moving to its climax, and very probably before the end of this month, perhaps even in a few days, we may receive news of the first assault on the summit of the mountain.

Each expedition has been said to stand on the shoulders of its predecessors, and Ruttledge, the leader this year, may be said to be standing on his own shoulders, for he gained invaluable experience as leader during the last expedition in 1933.

Even so, when we attempt to forecast the future, it is difficult to be optimistic, seeing that experts who have taken part in previous ventures calculate the odds against the success of any one expedition at rates varying between five to one and fifty to one.

Past history on Everest does not go very far. It was only in 1921 that the consent of the Tibetan Government was obtained, and the first reconnaissance party discovered the Chang La, or North Col, which was the key to the position. Hitherto no one knew whether mountaineers could live at even such comparatively moderate heights as 25,000 feet, and a great step forward was accomplished when in 1922 a party climbed to 26,855 feet without using oxygen. The same season two climbers with the help of oxygen reached a height of 27,900 feet.

SEVEN PORTERS LOST

Unfortunately there was an early monsoon that year, and consequently the snow that covered the ice-slopes of the North Col was so dangerous that a party of Englishmen and Indian porters, eighteen in number, were swept down by an avalanche, and seven porters lost their lives.

In past years four climbers have made, although the season was spoilt by the prevalence of terrible storms from the north-west. The sixth and highest camp was fixed at nearly 27,000 feet, and two climbers broke all records by reaching 28,000 feet. Subsequently, Mallory and Irvine, taking oxygen cylinders with them, set out from the sixth camp on the attempt from which they never returned. The next expedition was in 1933, and two parties reached 28,000 feet in spite of violent storms and a fatal early monsoon.

What are the prospects for this year? Until the recent snowstorm the party had progressed in strict accordance with its time-table, and on Everest punctuality is an outstanding achievement. Success or failure will now depend on the nature of the last thousand feet, and on the weather.

A DREADED OBSTACLE

In past year four climbers have ascended to 25,000 feet, but none of them has been able to negotiate the difficulties of what is known as the "Great Couloir." This dread obstacle is a huge gully that cuts the northern precipice of Everest into two parts, and falls steeply in one bound from a shoulder in the ridge just below the summit, on to the Rongbuk Glacier, ten thousand feet below.

Unfortunately the rocks of the Great Couloir are arranged in overlapping strata like the slates on a roof, and a roof, moreover, that is excessively steep. Now since snow at these extreme altitudes has always the consistency of powder, even the slightest covering of such treacherous stuff offers no reliable hand- or foot-hold, and renders this kind of rock-formation prohibitively dangerous to climbers, especially when they are suffering acutely from the effects of altitude.

Consequently, the only hope of crossing this terrible gully depends on a strong enough party finding it temporarily free from snow. Such an ideal moment may occur late enough in May or June for the cold to be endurable, yet not too late in the season for the oncoming monsoon clouds to have begun their fatal work of covering the rocks with snow. Such opportunities are rare on Everest.

For our knowledge of the quality of the climbing beyond and above the Great Couloir we must rely on a few photographs, either taken at a great distance or else close-up views suffering from the inevitable distortion of foreshortening. The evidence of these photographs has been quoted to prove that the final rocks are easy, but the evidence is hardly convincing. At any rate we may be sure that if the weather is favourable, and success crowns the efforts of the climbers, they will have achieved a feat of skill, strength, endurance, and courage that is positively prodigious.

EVERYTHING BUT HAGGIS

NEW MENUS FOR SCOTS PRISONERS

London, May 16.

Cells at Edinburgh Police Headquarters from to-morrow will have all the amenities of a first-class hotel.

For the Scottish Office has recommended—and the recommendation is being carried into effect—that there should be three meals a day with a choice of courses for the prisoners.

Sample menus submitted by a firm which has been given the catering contract included: Breakfast—Porridge and milk, rolls and butter, tea or coffee, an egg or sausages.

Dinner—Soup and bread, mince and potatoes or stew, vegetables and potatoes, and pudding.

Tea—Tea, bread, and butter, corned beef or fish.

In other samples a choice is given of shepherd's pie or brisket for dinner, and kipper or poached egg for tea.

As a rule prisoners in police cells are those awaiting appearance before Courts or transference to prison.

The Secretary of State for Scotland is anxious that the present diversity in the diets of prisoners throughout the country should end, and he has suggested a flat rate of 9d. for meals in cells and 1s. for meals for a prisoner on escort.

In a circular sent to police authorities he also suggests that mattresses, pillows and blankets and a table and chair should be available for those detained.

And as a final concession he asks that facilities for washing and shaving should be offered "to those who so desire."

HOW TO FIND RECRUITS

GET WOMEN
INTERESTED

London, May 28.

The way to get recruits for the Territorial Army is to obtain the interest of the women-folk, the Adjutant of the 18th London Regiment (Queen's Westminster and Civil Service Rifles), Captain D. O. Trench, told me yesterday, writes a correspondent.

"We ought to try to make the mothers, wives and sweethearts understand the truth of the situation," he said. "At present they have a feeling—particularly the mothers—that if their lads join the Territorials they are fostering the war spirit and, in fact, bringing war nearer."

"Nothing could be further from the truth. It is the country weak in its defences that may be attacked. Every young fellow who joins the Territorials makes war more unlikely."

"Get the women thinking in the right direction and they will probably insist upon their men going to the nearest Territorial headquarters. Then the recruiting problem will be settled."

At the headquarters of the regiment in Buckingham-gate, where all the advantages of a club are enjoyed by the members, there are frequent social functions.

On the athletic side the recruit would find much to his liking. The regiment runs two Rugby XV's, and when in camp has a cricket team.

Two of Jack Hobbs's sons were members of the regiment, and, Capt. Trench added, "they are not the only good cricketers we have here."

With regard to military work of the Queen's Westminster, he said, week-ends at Bletley were arranged, where the regiment had its own hut and the men practised on the ranges for the important rifle shooting meetings in July.

There were also frequent tactical exercises in the country, drill and practice for the signallers and other specialists.

SOVIET UNION ATTACKED

Swiss Council Debate

("Hong Kong Daily Press" Special)

Geneva, June 10.

A sharp attack on the Soviet Union was made by Dr. Giuseppe Motta, Chief of the Political Department of the National Council (Foreign Minister of Switzerland), in the course of a debate in the Council on Wednesday, when the Socialists and Communists cabled a motion to establish diplomatic relations with Russia.

Dr. Motta said that the Federal Council did not want to put any obstacles in the way of trade and commerce. On the contrary it was quite prepared to promote trade between the two countries. But he was of the opinion that the establishment of diplomatic relations did not influence this at all. He reminded his hearers that Holland, which did not recognise the Soviet Union, did more trade with her than Belgium whom she recognised.

It was by no means certain that Switzerland would not some day decide to recognise the Soviet Union. But before such a situation could arise, a radical change in the circumstances would have to take place. It would never be tolerated to have Switzerland made the centre of International Soviet propaganda.

It had been shown that there is a partial identity between the persons and a perplexing identity in ideas and interests between the Soviet Government and the Communist Party. The Communist teacher had taken all forms, and had but recently tried to incite revolution in Argentina, Brazil, Uruguay and other South American States. The Swiss people would never understand if the Federal Council came to a decision which might lead to so unpleasant and undesirable adventures.

Geneva, June 10.

The Slovakian Council has recently handed a memorandum to the League of Nations, in which it is complained that the country is being turned into an approach district for Bolshevism, through the military agreement between Czechoslovakia and Soviet Russia. Apart from many visits and return-visits of staff officers, it is stated that military and civil delegations from Russia have been extraordinarily active in Slovakia since the beginning of this year. Officers of Soviet Russia are having flying grounds built and rebuilt. In Bohemia and Slovakia numbers of new barracks have been built, which are inhabited and guarded by Russian military. Russian commissioners, with the support of Czechoslovakian authorities are conducting an intensive propaganda amongst the Slovaks, to persuade the latter to emigrate to Siberia and to work in the forests.

The memorandum accuses the Czechs of being willing to deliver the whole of Europe over to the influence of the Bolsheviks, instead of reaching an understanding with their neighbours.

GATHERING OF REPUBLICANS

Great Welcome For Hoover

ATTACK ON NEW DEAL

Cleveland, June 10.
To-day's highlight at the national Republican Party convention, which is choosing a candidate for the presidency, was the arrival of Mr. Herbert Hoover.

The crowds, numbering thousands, already whipped into a state of semi-hysteria at the ex-President on his arrival at the railway station. They fondly anticipated that he will launch a smashing attack on the New Deal in his speech to-night.

Mr. Hoover was obliged to shake hands with well-wishers for half an hour before he could win free of the station.

The sub-committee which is drafting the Republican platform has reached agreement with regard to a statement on foreign policy which is acceptable to Senator William Borah, who had threatened to bolt with his followers into the Roosevelt camp if Governor Landon of Kansas is chosen, as the presidential candidate.

It is understood the draft firmly declares against any connection with the League of Nations or the Court of International Justice.

As a further concession to the Borah faction, the party's monetary attitude will probably be stated less definitely than was expected, where the promptitude with which it is proposed the country should return to a fixed gold standard is concerned.

The party's plans for farmers are causing trouble, as it is considered impossible to avoid promising a continuance of farm subsidies, and the question is now whether these subsidies should be New York delegates have agreed to cast 85 of their 90 votes for Governor Landon. His supporters claim this makes his nomination a certainty.

ROOSEVELT CRITICISED

Cleveland, June 10.

The election of President F. D. Roosevelt and the history of the New Deal was compared to "the first stages in the march of European collectivism" by the former President, Mr. Herbert Hoover, speaking at the Republican national convention to-night.

He denounced the New Deal as sheer opportunism, emotional economics and greed for power and publicity. It was also a definite attempt to replace the American system of freedom with some sort of European-planned existence.

Wittingly or unwittingly, President Roosevelt was leading the United States on the road towards Socialist or Fascist dictatorship, declared Mr. Hoover.

For the first time in the history of America they had heard the gospel of class hatred preached from the White House and every reader knew that was the final rock on which all democracies were wrecked.

Mr. Hoover called upon the American people to enter upon a holy crusade for liberty.

Reuter.

PRESIDENT'S PLEDGE

Little Rock, Ark., June 10.

Speaking shortly before Mr. Hoover, President Roosevelt defended the New Deal in a speech at the Arkansas Centennial Exhibition. He pledged that the New Deal would continue the fight for equality of opportunity and the protection of the rights of the common man.

The "Royal Caledonian" is the year's greatest gathering of Scots in London and the oldest and most colourful charity ball. Over a thousand members of the Scottish aristocracy take part in the traditional Highland dances and reels.

SET REELS

The majority of this year's debutantes of Scottish descent will be included in the set reels, which consist of sixteen dances and eight-somes danced by ladies and gentlemen of Highland regiments, the Atholl Highlanders, and the London Scottish.

The ball is preceded by a display of piping and dancing by children of the Royal Caledonian Schools. A processional march, led by the Duchess of Atholl and the Earl of Dunmore, V.C., and pipers and drummers of the 2nd Battalion Scots Guards introduces the set reels.

Ladies wear the tartan sash of their clan. The beauty of the sweeping gowns is enhanced by jewels and the magnificent colouring of the sashes.

The "Royal Caledonian" was first held at the invitation of the Duke and Duchess of Atholl in London in 1849, when it was a small private gathering to collect funds for charity. Proceeds of the ball are devoted to the funds of Royal Scottish Corporation, the Royal Caledonian Schools, and other charities. This is the 88th ball.
